

President Stops At Lincoln

Ford Calls On Voters To Elect Republicans

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

President Gerald Ford, on the first political tour of his presidency, Wednesday left a message, loud and clear, with Nebraskans gathered at the Lincoln Air Park West:

Elect Republicans on Nov. 5 to insure an inflation-proof and not a veto-proof Congress.

If Democrats increase their numerical edge in the November election, the country could end up with a veto-proof Congress that will upset the balance of power between the branches of government, the President said.

"We don't want a dictatorship in the White House, in the Congress or in the courts," Ford told 5,000 people gathered under a clear autumn sky to greet him.

'Great Senators'

Nebraska voters, he said, should see to it that Rep. Charles Thone of Lincoln, Rep. John Y. McCollister of Omaha and Mrs. Haven Smith of Imperial are elected to join "your great senators Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska" in an inflation-proof Congress.

In addition to his partisan plea, Ford also brought a message for farmers.

— He hinted that import controls on foreign dairy goods will be imposed to aid U.S. dairy farmers.

— He said he will not impose grain export controls.

— And he termed the slaughter of calves in Wisconsin a great waste that does nothing toward solving the problem of livestock prices.

The first Nebraska-born President, Ford called Thone "one of the hardest-working members of Congress. His campaign slogan aptly described what he does in Washington: 'Thone Works.'"

'I'd Vote For Thone'

"I can attest to that. If I was in this (congressional) district, Democrat or Republican, I'd vote for Thone."

Ford's Lincoln stop, one of several planned for the day, lasted almost exactly the half-hour his schedule allotted. He arrived at 3:10 p.m. and was boarding Air Force One by 3:45 p.m.

His Lincoln speech was preceded by appearances in Kansas City, Mo., and Sioux Falls, S.D., on behalf of local Republicans. After Lincoln, he was scheduled to fly to Indianapolis.

Reports from the White House press corps indicated the 175 demonstrators on hand for Ford in Lincoln were the first on the tour.

Republican officials said they did not expect Ford's appearance to have a large effect on the Nov. 5 election.

However, they said it will generate enthusiasm for the entire state GOP ticket. Republicans said they consider Thone "safe" in his race against Democrat Hess Dyas.

Afterwards, Thone, surrounded by well-wishers, said he felt Ford's words had helped boost party workers' enthusiasm.

State GOP officials had hoped to get Ford to stay long enough for a fund-raiser to help replenish dwindling financial support. Those efforts failed, and as a result expenses for the Ford visit were kept to a minimum.

Most of the major Republican candidates for state office were on hand along with University of Nebraska Athletic Director Bob Devaney, who said the country is in good hands if Ford fights inflation as well as he played football at Michigan University.

In his address, Ford departed from his prepared text and dropped mention of Statehouse candidates to concentrate on the three congressional races, agriculture and inflation.

Republican office-seekers on hand were: Thone; Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson; gubernatorial candidate Richard Marvel; treasurer candidate Frank Marsh; lieutenant governor candidate Anne Batchelder; attorney general candidate Paul Douglas; and Public Service Commissioner Eric Rasmussen.

McCollister, Rep. Dave Martin and Sens. Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis were in Washington.

Won't Be Allowed

In the portion of his speech dealing with agriculture, Ford said, "We are not going to let foreign imports destroy our dairy farmers' domestic market."

He said he understands the frustrations of the Wisconsin farmers who Tuesday slaughtered calves because livestock and dairy prices are not high enough for farmers to recoup feed costs.

However, the slaughter is a "wasteful protest" which contributes nothing to the solution of the problem "at a time when the nation is trying to increase its food supply," Ford said.

The slaughter, he said, did not help the farmers and did not help the nation.

Ford said farmers "deserve your applause and your support. They are real inflation fighters."

And he said his administration is committed to giving farmers all the fuel and fertilizer they need "even if we have to allocate it arbitrarily."

Ford said he is faced with "a tough decision" concerning grain shipments. He said he is against export controls and does not intend to impose them. However, he said he also feels an obligation to consumers.

He said he intends to monitor grain sales and will permit "reasonable amounts of grain to be exported over a reasonable amount of time."

Dean: 3 Nixon Aides In Cover-up

Washington (UPI) — John W. Dean III testified Wednesday that Richard M. Nixon's closest aides — John N. Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman — were involved in a consuming flurry of cover-up activity after the Watergate break-in.

Chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal chronologically led Dean, Nixon's former counsel and the government's lead-off witness, through the meetings surrounding the June 17, 1972, break-in. It was expected the subpoenaed White House tape of Dean's Sept. 15, 1972, conversation with Nixon would be played Thursday afternoon in historic courtroom drama.

Dean, who is imprisoned after pleading guilty to his part in the cover-up, is expected to be questioned by the prosecution in the Watergate conspiracy trial for the rest of the week with cross-examination taking several more days.

Mitchell, the former attorney general; Haldeman and Ehrlichman, former White House aides; and Kenneth W. Parkinson and Robert C. Mardian, former re-election aides, are in the 12th day of their trial.

Dean testified that:

— At a June 19, 1972, meeting, he reported to Mitchell, Mardian and former deputy campaign director Jeb Stuart Magruder, who also is in prison, that Ehrlichman "had taken charge of matters at the White House."

"What 'matters'?" Neal asked. "Determining what had happened and how to deal with it," Dean replied, adding that Mitchell had replied to his report with an expressionless, off-the-cuff remark, "Isn't that wonderful?"

— At a meeting with Ehrlichman June 21, Ehrlichman suggested that Dean "shred" some bogus State Department cables about the Vietnam war and a psychiatric profile of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg, and "deep-six" electronic equipment, all of which had been found in the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt Jr., also convicted in the original trial.

— He phoned Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer and a fund-raiser, and now in prison, on June 28, and said he was calling at the request of Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman to raise money to "honor commitments" to the Watergate burglars.

Kalmbach agreed to do so, Dean said, and used the code names of "the Writer" for spy-novelist Hunt; "Brush" for Haldeman because of his crew-cut; "the Pipe" for pipe-smoking Mitchell; "Brow" for Ehrlichman; and "script" for money. Kalmbach called long distance, Dean said, "to tell the Pipe, the Brush, and the Brow that the Writer's wife had bought the script."

— At a meeting with Mardian, Frederick Larue and Magruder in late June, Magruder told him former White House Special Counsel Charles W. Colson, who also is in prison, phoned before the Watergate break-in "to get off the dime" and approve Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy's intelligence-gathering plan.

Dean testified Magruder told him Colson knew "we had Hunt and Liddy over here, and if we didn't use them, he would." According to Dean, Magruder said, "Frankly, John, we felt Chuck Colson would take over this operation" if they didn't move ahead with Liddy's plan.

— Magruder developed a story that the $200,000 given to Liddy was for protection for surrogate speakers for Nixon's re-election.

Neal asked whether anyone at a meeting of Mitchell, Magruder and Mardian in early to mid-July "dissented from the story Magruder had developed." Dean replied, "no one disagreed with it."

Lawyers for Ehrlichman, who have contended that Nixon repeatedly lied "to save his own neck in the Watergate scandal," said in briefs, meanwhile, that Nixon's testimony "is absolutely indisputable" to prove Ehrlichman's innocence.

They urged Judge John Sirica either to compel Nixon's appearance as a witness or at least to require that he undergo questioning under oath at his home in California. Sirica has set arguments for Thursday on Nixon's appearance.

Two Economists See Bad In Ford Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two economists told Congress on Wednesday that President Ford's economic proposals will do little to arrest the spiraling rate of inflation but will aggravate recession and increase unemployment.

Joseph A. Pechman and Arthur M. Okun, both of the Brookings Institution, a privately financed economic research group, criticized Ford for not taking direct action to hold down prices and costs.

Testifying before the Senate House Economic Committee, the two economists predicted a long period of recession if Congress enacts the President's proposals without major modifications.

"The President asked us all to eat less, to drive less and to sign pledges, but has not invoked his moral authority to ask business and labor to moderate price and wage increases," said Okun, who was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers during the Lyndon B. Johnson administration.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who is chairing the two-day hearing on the Ford proposals, agreed. He said he doubts whether steps proposed thus far by Ford or congressional leaders would deal effectively with the economic crisis.

"One way or another, our leaders have missed some general points," Proxmire said.

Specifically, the two economists complained that Ford's economic package, in stressing steps to hold down demand for goods and services, would plunge the nation into further recession.

Okun said Ford's proposals would maintain "a weak economy — indeed, a prolonged recession — for several years." He said the result would be higher unemployment and predicted a jobless rate of over 7 per cent within a year.

But the two economists differed on Ford's proposed 5 per cent surtax on individual incomes over $7,500 and family incomes over $15,000. Okun said it was "well conceived," although would not have a marked effect on lowering inflation.

Pechman, however, said the surtax would be paid by "the wrong people" and suggested "other tax reforms."

Ability Impaired

Vitek told the protesters the ability of the Department of Corrections to work on the grievances in the petition was impaired by the disruption.

"I discussed the situation with three of their spokesmen and spoke to the inmate body on the inmate radio intercom system."

Vitek said he had already left a report with Norm Otto, Exon's administrative assistant. "I want to compliment him (Vitek) on the excellent way the entire matter was handled," Exon said.

Vitek said he would be meeting with Exon soon to discuss the inmates' petition.

Penitentiary Work Stoppage Ends On 2nd Day

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

A work stoppage in its second day at the Nebraska Penitentiary ended Wednesday afternoon.

Joseph Vitek, director of corrections, said the institution returned to a normal schedule at 2:30 p.m.

The work stoppage began about 8:20 Tuesday morning as a protest over the placing of 10 inmates in the adjustment center Monday night.

The prisoners decided to end their strike after Vitek assured them he would forward their petition complaining about the state's good time laws to Gov. J. James Exon.

Good time laws determine how much time a prisoner gets off his sentence for good behavior.

Conditions Said Oppressive

In their petition, the prisoners contended that the present good time laws create arbitrary, capricious and oppressive conditions and do not "allow us any realistic rehabilitation opportunities."

Tuesday afternoon 17 inmates isolated themselves in the prison recreation yard and refused to return to their cells.

At 1:00 a.m. Wednesday six inmates remaining in the yard gave up their fight and agreed to return to their cells. The other 11 protesters had returned voluntarily to their cells one by one as time went on.

Vitek said the 10 men were placed in the adjustment center after it was determined they presented a "clear and present threat" to the other inmates and the security of the institution.

He said a search of their cells turned up "lethal, vicious weapons" along with drug injection paraphernalia, which convinced authorities that an emergency existed.

"I appreciate the inmates' handling of this in a peaceful and non-violent manner. I have told them that I cannot promise them anything, but will take their petition to the governor," Vitek said.

Vitek said the inmates went back into the recreation area Wednesday afternoon and ate in the dining hall Wednesday night. Tuesday

Congress Gives Ford Deadline On Turkey

Washington (UPI) — Congress voted Wednesday to give the administration until Dec. 10 to help negotiate a Cyprus settlement before cutting off U.S. military aid to Turkey.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said President Ford probably would veto the legislation.

The House and Senate agreed to identical language — despite the threat of a veto which would again delay the congressional recess.

The aid cutoff, a rider to a resolution providing funds for government agencies, provides that no military aid can be provided Turkey until Ford certifies "substantial progress" has been made toward a settlement and that Turkey is abiding by existing law which forbids use of U.S. weapons except for self-defense.

The legislation, however, would suspend the embargo until Dec. 10 with the proviso that no military aid could be transhipped to Turkish forces on Cyprus. It was this proviso that brought the veto threat. The administration was willing to accept the rest of the package.

Senate Democratic leader

Mike Mansfield, in an effort to avert the veto, tried unsuccessfully to eliminate the provision banning transshipment of arms.

Ford earlier this week vetoed similar legislation and was sustained by the House.

The amendment toned down somewhat the earlier congressional stand for immediate and outright cutoff of aid to Turkey, which the President vetoed Monday. The House failed to override that veto by 16 votes Tuesday.

The House finally passed, 287 to 30, a "continuing resolution" for temporary funds for foreign aid and a number of important government agencies during the projected campaign recess. The resolution included the Turkish aid provision.

In another development, the House adopted an amendment by voice vote virtually cutting off fertilizer procurement for South Vietnam.

Representatives of farming areas, angered by the inability of U.S. farmers to obtain fertilizers, proposed and won acceptance for a provision to allow a mere $1,000 for fertilizer for Saigon in the continuing resolution.

The Turkey amendment was offered by Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., one of the leading opponents of Turkey's use of American arms in the Cyprus invasion.

Ford said an immediate cutoff of aid to Turkey would make the Ankara government unwilling to negotiate with Greece over Cyprus and would hurt the U.S. strategic position in the Mediterranean.

But critics of the Turkish military aid insist further supplies for Turkey are illegal because it violated U.S. law in using American equipment to invade Cyprus.

Thief Glad To Be Caught

San Jose, Calif. (UPI) — A 20-year-old purse snatcher got more than he bargained for at a San Jose shopping center.

Police said the man snatched a purse and ran through a vacant lot with a nearby truck in pursuit. The truck knocked him down but he managed to limp away.

A second citizen pulled a gun and told him to stop. Two shots were fired at the thief, but he escaped and hid in a garbage can.

A third passerby opened the garbage can and held a knife at the purse snatcher's throat until police arrived.

"I'm glad you're here," police quoted Jim Coburn Jr. as saying "Everybody's trying to kill me."

Police said they recovered $19 and jailed Coburn.

Ford Considers Vetoing GI Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is considering vetoing increases in GI education benefits voted by Congress last week as inflationary, White House sources said Wednesday.

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee, said he has told the White House that if there is a veto there will be a major effort in Congress to override it.

The legislation provides 23 per cent increases for most veterans who are students, a figure Ford has said is too high. He suggested 18 to 19 per cent as coming nearer to making up for cost-of-living increases.

However, the bill passed last Thursday by both House and Senate still hasn't been processed on Capitol Hill and sent to the White House, the sources said.

The legislation, approved by the House 388-0 and by voice vote in the Senate, provides benefits for seven million Vietnam era veterans and four million post-Korean War veterans.

However, the sources said the leadership is considering holding the bill until after Congress returns from its election-time recess to prevent a pocket veto.

Rail Pension Bill Law

Washington (AP) — The Senate joined the House Wednesday in overwhelmingly rejecting President Ford's veto of the railroad retirement bill and enacting it into law.

The Senate vote was 72-1. The House tally Tuesday was 360-12. Each was far more than the necessary two-thirds.

Veteran congressional officials said they were among the most lopsided votes to override a veto in many years.

The bill commits the federal government to put $7.1 billion into the railroad retirement system in the next 25 years to save it from imminent bankruptcy.

A vote to sustain the veto was regarded as politically dangerous since the alternative to the federal subsidy would be a substantial reduction in pensions now being received

Committee Looks Into $50,000

Washington (UPI) — Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., disclosed Wednesday that the Senate Rules Committee is investigating a $50,000 loan made by "Rockefeller family interests" to a former New York Republican state chairman later convicted of bribery.

Cannon made the disclosure after rejecting a request by Nelson A. Rockefeller for an immediate reopening of public hearings on other matters that threaten his confirmation as vice president.

The loan to L. Judson Morhouse, Cannon said, was in addition to an $86,000 gift Rockefeller made to Morhouse after granting him clemency on the conviction for bribery in a liquor scandal.

Cannon refused to reveal details of the loan, but said the matter was being investigated by the Manhattan district attorney's office.

Rockefeller's press secretary, Hugh Morrow, said the loan to Morhouse was made by Laurence Rockefeller in 1959.

Morhouse used the money to buy stock in American Cyrogenics, shortly before the company made a public stock issue. He later sold the stock, with a substantial profit, and repaid the loan.

Since the loan was not made by Nelson Rockefeller, it was not included in material he filed with the committee disclosing he had given $2 million in gifts to associates.

Morris Udall 'Test Waters'

San Francisco (AP) — Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., says he's "testing the waters" before he decides within 60 to 90 days whether to try to raise money for a try at the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

"Testing the waters" is a euphemism for "of course I'm running for it," the 52-year-old congressman told newsmen here. "But I'm not supposed to say so and you're not supposed to say I am."

Asked about his chances, Udall replied: "I can recognize a longshot when I see one, and I'm one."

City Plan Not A Law

The new comprehensive city plan being drawn up for Lincoln is not a legally binding document and no one, we hope, wants to make it such. It is proposed, however, that the City Council be given responsibility for approval of the plan rather than the City-County Planning Commission, as is now the case.

We are rather doubtful that it makes much difference one way or another but are inclined toward maintaining the status quo of things. The plan can never be any more than just that, regardless of who gives it the final stamp of approval.

A plan is just that — something that sets up certain objectives and maps the way of meeting those objectives. The plan is given life, is implemented, through the various zoning and land development decisions of the City Council. These decisions do have the force of law and are made by the duly elected representatives of the people.

The danger in having the council adopt or approve the plan is that it tends to make that document a rigid one. Will a council that has formally approved such a plan very easily depart from it? Would a council that did so then be accused of inconsistency?

Even comprehensive city plans are intended to change according to the dictates of the times. An objective that looks good today may not look so good five years from now.

Another good argument for things as they now stand is the present state of development of the city. Lincoln has done a good planning job. The city has acquired a unique and enviable character through the council's judicious application of sound zoning regulations, its energetic annexation policy and its thoughtful consideration of open space developments.

As a result of this, the city has grown at a constructive pace and maintained its attractiveness in the process. Taxpayers have benefitted from the maximum utilization of public services and programs. Still, there has been at least a reasonable degree of flexibility, an ability to meet the changing needs of new and different times.

In looking at the past, one really fails to see any great need or justification for changing the process by which the comprehensive plan comes into play.

Pabulum And Turkey

President Ford talked down to the Future Farmers and the vast home audience Tuesday night in a rather senseless exercise which left us baffled as to why he requested national television and radio exposure.

"C'mon kids, let's all be good sports and pitch in and whip inflation," he was saying, but anybody who listened to their parents has heard it all before. Save your pennies. Wear your galoshes. Don't buy what you can't afford.

What is good about Ford's WIN campaign is that at the least it has a positive ring to it. Rather than railing at personal enemies, real or imagined, as his predecessor did, he has asked for and received a generous if not meaningful response from people who have conveyed to him their ideas on how to combat a ghostly enemy which is somewhat hard for the average fellow to corner. The President is promoting a spirit of sacrifice and cooperation and a decent attention to vir-tuous living. And that's not all bad.

What is not so good is that in a backhanded way, the President keeps implying that men and women of average means or below are economic criminals who must now pay the penalty for their waywardness. But at the same time he seems to exclude from his plea those economic segments who will receive incentives under parts of the program he has offered and who can best cope with the rest of it.

We're of the opinion that people — all people — should accept the President's challenge and do what they can to whip inflation now. But, again, is the "marshmallow" program he offers tough enough to shock people into perceiving the danger?

The President said if the people and the Congress don't bite the bullet he will be back to "talk turkey." He didn't talk turkey Tuesday night, he talked pabulum. We're waiting for the turkey.

The Election Trends

WASHINGTON — Two trends are noticeable in this year's congressional and gubernatorial elections: A preference for Democratic Party candidates, but a lack of enthusiasm for most candidates in both parties. So far the election has been a dozer.

The polls bear out this combination of apathy and longing for new faces and wider choices, not only in the off-year elections but in the presidential election of 1976. More than half the American people, according to a poll by Kevin Phillips and Albert Sundlinger, would like to have a choice other than the prospective Republican and Democratic presidential candidates in '76.

The recognition problem . . . A president among them?

This raises a fundamental question: Why, after the political system produced the unhappy choice of Richard Nixon or George McGovern in 1972, is it still so hard to get a national audience for new candidates if this is what a majority of the voters are looking for? It is not because we do not have the means of getting new candidates before the people. With three national commercial television networks and an increasingly influential educational chain of stations, there has never been another time in American politics when men of ambition and talent could become widely known so quickly.

Yet most of the governors, and there are some very good governors, are usually unknown outside their own states, and the contingent of Senators Jackson of Washington and Mondale of Minnesota is that, no matter how much they campaign around the country, they are still not national, but regional figures.

Part of the problem is that many good men don't come forward for the presidency simply because they don't think they have a chance. Elliot Richardson of Massachusetts and William Ruckelshaus of Indiana are both attractive, talented, and experienced men, with greater administrative abilities than most potential candidates, but they are seldom mentioned.

Henry Kissinger is not mentioned, because he was born abroad and is therefore ineligible under the Constitution, which could, of course, be changed.

Others, however, are coming forward, but unless somebody devises a way to get them widely seen and known in the next 18 months, their chances of winning in the primaries or the conventions will not be very good. This is something editors and the producers of network television shows can do something about. The editors of Time Magazine have recognized this problem. They have challenged the popular assumption that this country is short of leaders by publishing long lists of the best of the rising generation, and turning over their cover to new personalities whenever they have had an excuse.

There is still plenty of time for the networks to do hour-long "specials" on each of the presidential possibilities long before the primaries. The tendency, however, is to concentrate on the big names, who are almost too well known, and to wait until it is too late to give the people a chance to judge the newcomers.

It can be argued, of course, that editors and TV producers are supposed to cover the news and not make the news, but anybody with even an outside chance to be president is news. Gov. George Wallace of Alabama is well known nationally, and partly for this reason, with Sen. Kennedy out of the race, he is now leading the Democratic polls.

Veteran politicians like Mike Mansfield, the Senate majority leader will tell you that Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Jr. of Texas, and Gov. Reubin Askew, the governor of Florida, are men of presidential stature, but the rest of the country is not likely to be let in on the secret unless they get far more newspaper and television coverage than they've been getting in the past.

Similarly, John Gardner of Common Cause believes Gov. Dan Evans of the state of Washington, and Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., should be considered seriously for the presidency, but if the choice is left to the politicians, they will be lucky to get tickets to the conventions.

No president from the South has been elected in this century unless he was first in the vice president's chair, and the South, which is long overdue at the White House, has produced a good crop of candidates this year.

Among them, in addition to Bentsen and Askew, are Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, former Governor Terry Sanford of North Carolina, Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana, Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, Julian Bond, state senator from Georgia, and Sen. Howard Baker Jr., R-Tenn.

Most of these men are almost 20 years younger than the leading candidates on the Republican side, President Ford, Nelson Rockefeller of New York, and Ronald Reagan of California, all in their sixties. But the voters are not likely to consider them if they seldom see them.

The objections to publicizing them now is that it is "too early," but if they are not known until the primaries, the chances are it will then be too late.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

'On The Give'

WASHINGTON — Last year, we struck down a man elected as vice president for being on the take; this year, we are blazing away at a man nominated to be vice president for being on the give.

Public exposure of the use of Rockefeller wealth in politics came not as a result of a Senate committee doing its duty, nor of the press demanding equal scrutiny, but because some government employee invaded the privacy of income tax returns when it became evident that our watchdog institutions were determined not to watch.

Embarrassed at having been caught with their double standards showing, both the Senate and the press have belatedly donned their full Watergate regalia to go out and smite the Rockefeller dragon.

There is good and bad in these tardy revelations promised by our hangdog watchdogs. First, the good:

It's about time we woke up to the fact that the super-rich politician — whether a Rockefeller, Kennedy, or Harriman — is not to be revered for being "too rich to steal" but is to be watched for being "too rich to run against."

Time, too, to recognize that rich men in politics are under enormous pressure to supplement the salaries of good men they bring on the public payroll. That is against the law. By careful timing, Rockefeller may have stayed within the law, but the skill with which rules were circumvented shows that he was well aware that his largesse was against public policy.

And it is timely to remind anyone attracted to the service of any candidate that politics involves a choice of wielding power over making money. Spare us the "sacrifice of public service" folderol: Being a bigshot is even more fun than being rich.

In accepting over a half-million dollars tax-free, Dr. William Ronan tried to have it both ways, and now this Pere Trembley to Rockefeller's Richelieu goes down in New York history as the first l'eminence grease.

Surely Rockefeller's motives were good; certainly he had all these people indebted to him before he gave them money; and granted, he expected nothing from them that he would not otherwise get, because they were all on the same team anyway.

But there is a sign on the political wall that reads "No Tipping Allowed." When anybody gives Henry Kissinger $50,000 three days before he takes the oath as the president's national security adviser, there need be no venal intent to make it an impropriety — it is improper on its face.

Well-intentioned, yes; in character for a philanthropist, yes; the appearance of conflict of interest, absolutely. Rockefeller will have to come to grips with that, or the nomination will fail. He is going to have to see that light and admit the practice is wrong and promise never to do it again.

Along with the exposure of Sen. Robert Byrd as a bit of a fraud for his pretension of cross-examining Rockefeller at his hearings, that is what is good about showing that the "myth" of the political power of Rockefeller wealth is true.

Now here is where it is bad. We are out for blood. The atmosphere is such that we cannot merely reproach a nominee for what we find, listen to his remorse on certain episodes, and then judge his fitness on the whole.

Instead, we are caught up in a total war on reputation, a habit of finding some weakness in a career and then moving in for the kill. Even the victims pass along the savagery, as Abe Fortas denounced Nixon and Thomas Eagleton, sounding like old Joe McCarthy, lashes out at Peter Flanagan, and the habit of tearing down public men becomes ever more ingrained.

Is that what we want? Have we become the prisoners of our own moral revolution? Will the only nominees able to pass muster be people who have spent no time in the arena?

The Congress should stop its dangerous daily confirmation of Carl Albert as acting vice president, and get on with its responsibilities under the 25th Amendment to promptly consider the President's choice.

Rockefeller should assert he was wrong to supplement salaries, which will help end that practice, and then the Congress should confirm him as vice president.

Onward Buttoned Soldiers

WASHINGTON — At the White House they gave me a button that said "WIN."

"It stands for 'Whip Inflation Now,'" an economist said. "Wear it and help beat inflation."

I wore it to the butcher shop and focused its powerful message on the hamburger. The price purred and rose immediately. I trimmed the button with wolf's bane and crucifix, took it downtown and aimed it steadily at the power company. The price of electricity went up again.

Back to the White House. "This one doesn't work. Give me another."

They fitted the new button into my lapel. "Wear it with confidence," they said. "Think of it as a weapon in the war on inflation."

At the haberdasher I stuck it under the nose of a salesman, and he tried to charge me $70 for a pair of pants.

At the White House they listened sympathetically. "We'll let you talk to a WIN button expert," they said.

The expert smoked a pipe packed with falling economic indicators. "You are using the button wrong," he said. "You are supposed to aim it at yourself, not at rising prices. When you see a rising price, aim the WIN button at yourself and — ZAP! — it will stop you from buying."

Back home I read that the natural-gas people were threatening to raise prices. I turned the lapel up, took a full zap of WIN right between the eyes and turned down the thermostat.

Almost immediately the gas people said they would have to raise prices because customers were using less gas.

The White House WIN button expert was reflective. "It's true," he said. "There are still some bugs that have to be ironed out of the button."

"You mean it doesn't work, don't you?" "I wouldn't say that," he said. "The only problem is that it doesn't stop prices from rising when you aim it at prices, and it doesn't stop prices from rising when you aim it at yourself."

"Then what good is it?" "It's fun to wear," he said, "and it gives you a feeling you're doing your bit in the war on inflation."

He looked intently at the button and suddenly caught a zap in the noodle. "I've got it!" he cried. "Yes?"

"I'm going to raise your taxes." I wept. "There, there," he said. "Don't cry. The tax rise will help beat inflation by taking spending power out of your pocket, but that's not the beauty part."

"Give it to me straight." "The beauty part is that the tax increase will be so small you won't even notice it." "So my spending power won't be seriously affected?"

"Hardly at all," he beamed. "Then how will the tax increase stop the inflation?"

"I'll figure that out later," he said. "Rome wasn't built in a day. Thinking up the WIN button took me almost three weeks."

In that case, I said, it would take him at least five years to come up with a useful idea. He was hurt. "Don't knock the WIN button," he said. "It has already struck a heavy blow in the war on inflation."

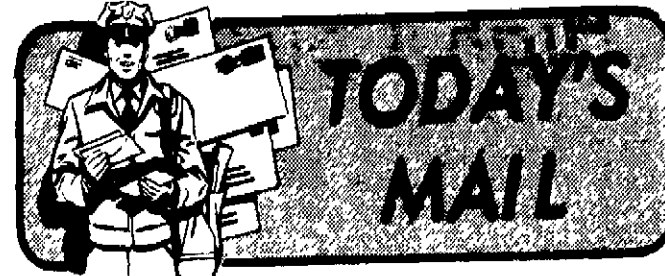

I gave him the graveyard laugh. "Listen," he said, "not long ago very influential people around here were talking about making war on the Arabs to stop the rise in oil prices. Do you know what that would have meant?"

"No light at the end of the tunnel."

"Inflation," he said. "Inflation like you've never seen. Triple-digit inflation. I had a better idea. 'Mr. President,' I said, 'make buttons, not war.'"

You had to give him credit, all right. At 12 per cent.

Lincoln, Neb.

Autumn is the harvest season not only for Nebraska's farmers but also for those of us who are interested in nature's wild food bounty. Because of my campaign for the Lancaster County Weed Control Authority a number of people have been calling me about the gathering of wild foods during the fall season.

Perhaps the most easily gathered foods now are wild grapes and wild plums, both of which make fine jelly, jam, or wine. While the plums are small, they are also good to eat right from the bush; grapes, however, tend to be too small for easy eating. These two wild Nebraska fruits are easily recognized and are not easily confused with any other, inedible plants. But it might pay to look at some grape leaves before setting out to gather grapes because occasionally someone will gather a bushel or two of Virginia Creeper berries, which are also called "False Grape" because of the faint similarity. Virginia Creeper berries are not juicy, however, and grow on rangy red stemmed bunches while grapes tend to grow in tight bunches on green to brown stems.

This is also the season for root crops, of course, and the Nebraska countryside offers its share of underground produce, too. It is a messy job digging for Arrowhead or Indian Potato because it likes to grow in swampy ditches and along the banks of rivers and lakes and unless you are a practiced hunter or have spotted a patch before the leaves dried away you may have some trouble locating them, but it is worth the trouble, because the small, thumb-sized tubers are delicious when cooked; raw they are terrible!

Jerusalem Artichokes are easier to find and dig but more difficult to recognize because they look so much like sunflowers, especially when they are dried and blown by fall winds. But for those of us who enjoy them, they are worth the trouble, for they are sweet and succulent — and free.

In all cases, if you are not familiar with the appearance of the wild foods or their preparation it is wise to consult a farmer or biologist, or county extension agent, who can help you identify the plant. For recipes browse through the books of Euell Gibbons or Bradford Angier, all available at the City Libraries.

Not only are wild foods cheaper, but it is also more fun to shop for them! Perhaps next year you can do what I have done and plant your garden to wild foods.

Outlaw Fruitcakes?

Lincoln, Neb.

At the risk of sounding naive, I would like to comment on the Rockefeller gifts.

Mr. Rockefeller is on the have side of life and we have-nots continually resent what the haves have.

I never knock a gift because gift-giving and receiving is the two-way experience that is most satisfying for the giver as well as the receiver.

I wouldn't want to discourage Rockefeller's sharing part of what he has if he wanted to do so and I dread that Congress might be prompted to outlaw fruitcakes, turkeys and color TVs.

Nelson Rockefeller hasn't broken any laws as all of these cash gifts have been above board with taxes paid. Perhaps the fracas could be eliminated by outlawing cash gifts, forcing people to go out and shop for yachts, lots, autos, garments, etc., making the gift much more personal and keyed to the personalities involved. Most important, this would keep the money moving so workers can make and salesmen can sell.

Seriously, I would hate to see the unselfish act of giving negate a valuable servant such as Rockefeller. The mere fact that he had the courage to face the scrutiny of the committee in these post-Watergate days makes it evident that he has little to hide. Most of the Rockefeller men, having been born without financial need, developed the appetite for being needed themselves.

I see a difference between Richard Nixon, who needed a job, and Rockefeller or John F. Kennedy, who wanted their jobs.

Give Marvel A Whirl

Lincoln, Neb.

When I first met Mr. Richard Marvel of Hastings I didn't know who he was, but from his armload of books I thought he was a university student. I'd bring him a hot cup of coffee he would enjoy as he studied. Later, I decided he must be a professor.

He once told me of the untold wealth between the covers of a book. We don't realize how little we know until we read their contents. I've always been a reader, but not of those he carried every day.

Imagine my astonishment when someone called him senator! But he remained the same quiet-spoken man, enjoying his steaming cup of coffee as he pored over his books.

Years back Mr. Chester B. Dobb predicted Mr. Marvel would be a future governor. So I watch with extra interest his progress.

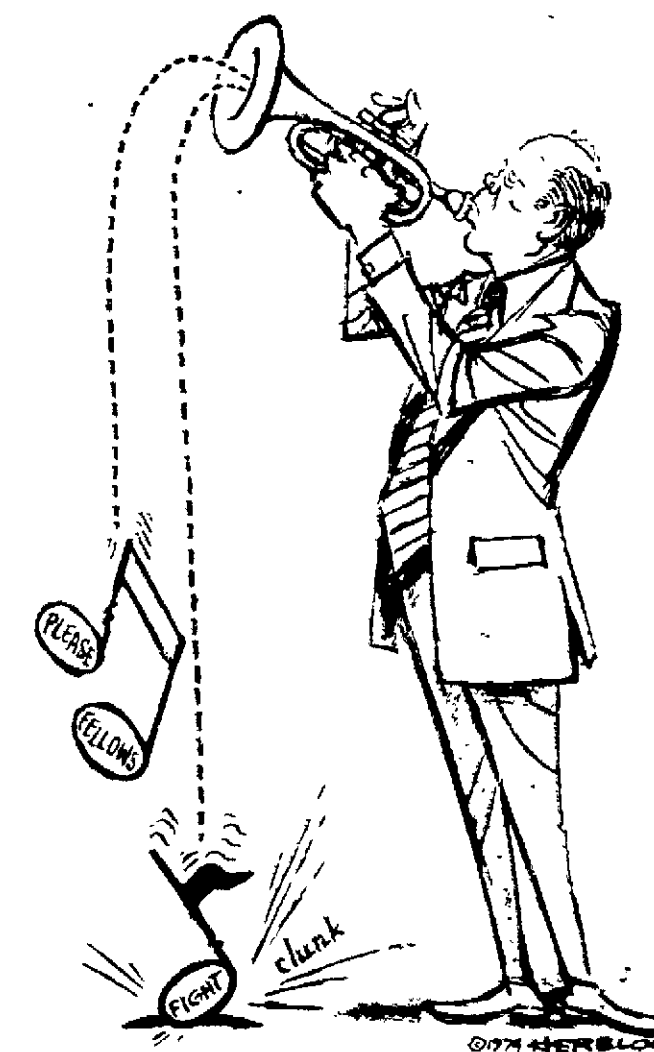

Jan. 3, 1963, when interviewed by The Star's Betty Person he was quoted: "Don't economize just to economize or spend just to be spending, then say this is progress." This seems to fit today's problem, inflation. Use common sense.

Sen. Marvel was named the head of the budget committee in 1963. He has long been involved in politics. He does not rave or rant, and he is not a mudslinger. He is a dignified, serious, quiet-spoken man.

How about giving him a whirl at the governorship? There will be no doubletalk or fine print in his platform.

High Court Upholds Order Requiring Iowa Beef Sales

Washington (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court Wednesday upheld an order requiring Iowa Beef Processor to sell two of its plants in connection with government antitrust action.

The court, in a brief order giving no reasons, upheld a lower court decision refusing to vacate a 1970 order calling for sale of the plants.

The case began in 1969 when the Justice Department moved against IBP's acquisition of Blue Ribbon Beef Pack Inc. The government said the acquisition would substantially lessen competition for the buying of fed cattle in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and South Dakota.

IBP had five slaughterhouses of its own and in 1970 the parties signed a consent order requiring the firm to sell the two additional Blue Ribbon plants.

IBP said, and a lower court agreed, that it had tried unsuccessfully for three years to sell the plants, even reducing the asking price from $4 million to $3 million, after having paid $5.6 million.

But not one buyer came forward, and IBP asked the district court to vacate the decree.

The government, without asking for a modification of the decree, said that the economic changes in the slaughter industry that made the two plants economically unattractive could have been foreseen in 1970. It asked the court to appoint a trustee to sell them.

The district court last February appointed the trustee, David Neubauer, executive vice president of a packinghouse equipment supply firm, and ordered strict enforcement of the original decree.

The plants are at Le Mars and Mason City, Iowa.

Scouts To Raise York Flag

York — A public flag-raising in Court House Square each morning will mark a special first annual Americanism Week to be held here Nov. 4-11.

Each morning a troop of Boy or Girls Scouts will raise the flag. The high school band will march to the square and accompany the performance, and businessmen whose stores are located on the square will step outside and salute the flag.

The state's Liberty Bell will be on display in the square during the week, and each merchant has donated window space for displays by students.

And the Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring an essay contest for all 9th and 10th graders in the greater York area.

State CAP Is Credited With Saving Pilot's Life

Omaha (AP) — The Nebraska Wing of the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) has received word from the national CAP headquarters at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., crediting the Nebraska Wing with saving the life of a student pilot attempting her cross country solo flight.

The national CAP said the life-saving effort, Nebraska's first for 1974, pushed the national total to 27 lives saved this year due to efforts of CAP personnel.

The CAP said that the student, while trying to fly cross country from Millard to Lincoln and return, became lost, disoriented and low on fuel.

At the time, a Nebraska CAP aircraft was returning from the north central region CAP conference and was monitoring an emergency radio frequency and heard the student's distress call.

The CAP plane was given permission by Omaha radar control to contact the distressed craft. After voice contact, CAP personnel located the student plane 40 miles off course. The CAP plane escorted the student pilot to the Council Bluffs airport and assisted her in her approach.

The national CAP letter said, in part, "The timely action of the CAP crew was credited with saving her from certain disaster."

Horticulturists Invited To UNL

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Vice Chancellor Duane Acker has invited 48 consumers and representatives of the horticulture industry to meet Oct. 24 on the UNL East Campus.

The NU Board of Regents in September divided the Department of Horticulture and Forestry in Acker's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, and he called the day-long meeting to review current horticulture programs. Acker said he also intends to discuss the responsibilities of the new horticulture department to NU students, the state's horticulture industry and consumer citizens.

"The established programs in horticulture," Acker said, "as well as potential programs must be reviewed, and priorities established" to meet student and citizen needs.

Acker pointed out the new department "has broad responsibilities to both urban and rural citizens and enterprises."

The 48 people will tour UNL ag facilities, including the Plant Industry Building and greenhouses. In small group discussions and workshops, they'll air ideas and suggestions and compare them in a general meeting.

Acker said he will consider all suggestions when he and others recommend a new Horticulture Department chairman and in future Guidance of the department.

Brazilians Release Ex-Nebraskan

North Platte (UPI) — A former North Platte man who had been held by Brazilian authorities since his arrest Sept. 30 for alleged subversive activities was released Wednesday and was expected to arrive in New York City Thursday morning.

The Rev. Frederick B. Morris was scheduled to leave Rio de Janeiro Wednesday night on the flight to New York.

Morris' brother, the Rev. Hughes B. Morris Jr., of Shelton, flew to New York Wednesday afternoon to meet Morris and accompany him back to Nebraska.

On Tuesday, Brazil rejected a United States protest against the arrest and alleged mistreatment of Morris and ordered him expelled from the country.

State Department officials said the Brazilian Ministry of Justice on Oct. 9 denied that Morris, formerly a missionary in Brazil who had gone back to that country as a businessman and freelance correspondent, had been arrested without reason or mistreated while in captivity.

When American Consul Richard Brown visited Morris two weeks ago, he reported he observed bruises on Morris' back, buttocks and wrists.

Brown said Morris told him at that time he had been assaulted by his captors and had been struck in the stomach, groin and lower back. He also said electrodes had been attached at various times to several parts of his body and he had been subjected to electric shocks.

Brown reported the mistreatment had ceased after his first visit with Morris.

The Brazilian government denied that any violence had been used beyond the minimum necessary to make the arrest, then detailed the subversive acts alleged against Morris and ordered his expulsion from the country.

The Rev. Hughes Morris expressed the "appreciation of our family for all the prayers, acts of concern and telegrams sent on behalf of Fred."

Morris said he expected his brother to be back in Nebraska "sometime early next week."

Frederick Morris' father is the Rev. Hughes B. Morris Sr., of North Platte.

Free Off-Street Parking Suggested In G.I.

Grand Island (UPI) — Totally free off-street parking may become a reality in downtown Grand Island within the next six months.

City officials released that estimate concerning a proposal passed by the Downtown Trade Council. The plan, which was recommended by the Downtown Coordinating Council after five weeks of study, called for creation of an off-street district and an occupational users' tax.

The district would include the presently defined central business district.

In effect, the plan called for the purchase of assets of the Grand Island Parking Corp. as well as the assumption of the city's indebtedness on off-street parking lots.

Downtown businessmen would be required to pay a total of $85,000 per year into a value-added and occupation tax to finance the plan.

Under the proposal, the parking meters would stay in place for traffic control purposes and to help pay off the debt on the off-street lots.

However, the downtown retailers group has approved a plan for giving out "slugs" for meters to customers for the Nov.

15 through Jan. 1 period.

The off-street parking proposal now must clear the stockholders of the Grand Island Parking Corp., the City Council and the property owners within the district.

Knutzen: Court's Ruling Won't Affect Integration

Omaha (AP) — Superintendent Owen A. Knutzen says the Federal District Court ruling in favor of the Omaha School District will not mean any shift away from steps already started to increase integration.

The new policy is voluntary, and transfers are approved only if they improve racial balance unless there are mitigating circumstances. Results this first school term showed about 90 students, more than 90% of them black, got transfers.

Allegations that the original policy was discriminatory were rejected Tuesday by Federal District Judge Albert G. Schatz. He dismissed federal charges of discrimination against the district.

Amputee Reported Satisfactory

Grand Island (UPI) — A rural Genoa youth was reported in satisfactory condition Wednesday at Lutheran Hospital after his arm was severed in a farm accident.

Phil Pearson, 16, suffered the injury Monday when his left arm became entangled in an auger.

When Phil failed to come in for supper, his father, Don Pearson, searched for him and found him where he had been picking corn. His arm was caught in the auger.

The boy was taken to the Genoa Hospital, then transferred to Grand Island where the arm was amputated above the elbow.

Dyas Raps Thone Vote

Hess Dyas criticized Rep. Charles Thone Friday for the latter's reversal on the foreign aid issue and ultimate support for aid for Turkey.

Dyas, Democratic First District candidate for Congress, said Thone reported in his weekly column to newspapers in late September, "Congress ought to completely scrap our foreign aid program right now."

Dyas said Thone went on to say that during the recent conflict on Cyprus "both sides were fighting with arms supplied by the United States. Turkey was clearly the aggressor after the Greek military government fell, yet the administration proposes to continue military aid to Turkey."

But Thone reversed his field, Dyas said. "Thone has voted twice in the last few days to support President Ford and to continue aid to Turkey."

"I would have voted to cut off aid to Turkey and against continued foreign aid in the case," Dyas said. "That is because I'm concerned about inflation and about foreign aid that hurts us more than it helps us."

Competitive Trail Ride Will Be At Cave Park

By JOEL THORSON

Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Barada — Nebraska's first competitive trail ride will be held in Indian Cave State Park near here this weekend by the newly-formed Nebraska Endurance and Trail Ride Association (NETRA).

Riders in open class and novice categories will ride a total of 50 miles of measured trails through the Missouri River bluffs Saturday and Sunday, competing for awards to be given Sunday afternoon. Horses are judged on soundness, condition, manners and "way of going." Riders also compete for a horsemanship award.

Competitive trail riding, sanctioned by the North American Trail Ride Conference (NATRC), is a growing sport, although not a new one. Unlike endurance riding (a race over a 50 to 100-mile course), it is not an endurance race but a test of the horse under uniformly controlled circumstances.

As of Tuesday, there were 25 entries from as far away as California, according to Cheryl Hale of NETRA. Entries are allowed as late as Friday, she said.

The main camp will be just inside the main entrance to the park on the Richardson-Nemaha county line. Competitors will ride a 30-mile course one day and a 20-mile course the other, with frequent checks of pulse and respiration by a pair of judges. One judge must be a practicing veterinarian.

There are no restrictions as to breed, registration or membership in either organization.

Omaha Will Elect Freshmen Solons

By The Associated Press
When the Legislature meets in January, the learned legal opinions of Richard Fellman and the antics of Richard Proud will be gone and Omaha will be represented by a delegation which will contain at least four freshmen.

Along with Fellman and Proud, Omaha is losing Duke Snyder, a frequent debater on the floor of the Legislature, and David Stahmer, a constant and often controversial crusader for humanitarian causes.

They will be replaced by four of eight candidates who are largely unknown to Nebraskans.

In 1st District, Larry Stoney and Carlin Whitesell are competing for the seat.

Whitesell, a retired Army Corps of Engineers colonel, is an executive in the Peter Kiewit Sons' Co.

Whitesell received 1,652 primary votes compared to 1,842 for Stoney, who is a Mutual of Omaha insurance executive.

In Stahmer's 8th District, Warren R. Swigart gained 2,406 votes to top the field and Thomas J. Dugdale won the right to oppose him by coming in second with 848 votes.

Swigart served on the Omaha City Council for 15 years and now works as a real estate broker.

Dugdale received his law degree from Creighton University last year.

Ironically, a past president of the Nebraska League of Women Voters, Mrs. Emmajean D. Wupper, is seeking the seat of Sen. Richard Proud, the leading opponent of the women's Equal Rights Amendment.

Her 1,659 votes in the primary placed her second to Jerry Koch, who gathered 2,101 votes for the 12th Legislative District seat.

Koch is the director of the Omaha Suburban Council of Schools.

In the 14th District, Tom Fitzgerald and Jim Keillor are competing for the seat of retiring state Sen. Duke Snyder.

Fitzgerald, an Omaha mailman, received 913 votes in the primary.

Keillor, a nursing home owner, received 789.

There are three incumbents up for re-election in Omaha, John Savage, Glenn Goodrich, and Harold Moylan.

Exon Hit For Claiming Credit For Cutting Taxes

Kearney (AP) — Secretary of State Allen Beermann charged that Gov. J. James Exon has taken credit for lowering the state income tax after he first endorsed and then opposed the reduction.

At a Buffalo County Republican campaign rally, Beermann said Exon told the Unica metal in April of 1973 the income tax should be reduced from 13 to 10%.

Beermann said Exon then asked the Legislature three times to restore the 13% level to keep the state from going broke. Beermann said as of Sept. 30 the surplus in the general fund was $68 million.

Beermann said recent Democratic campaign material he obtained quotes the governor as taking credit for lowering the income tax rate.

Senators Visit Debated Office Building

Omaha (AP) — State Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney led a legislative subcommittee tour of an Omaha office building Wednesday morning as a prelude to public hearings on the building, and the lease the state signed for its occupancy by the State Labor Department.

The hearings are to be held Thursday and Friday in Lincoln.

The three-year-old, three-story building, owned by the Jado Investment Co., of Omaha, has become a controversy in the weeks leading up to the November elections, Republicans claiming the 15-year state lease was signed as a political gift, Democrats charging the GOP with a political "witch hunt" just before the election in an attempt to get Gov. J. James Exon defeated.

Michael Jackson of Omaha, a Democratic candidate for the Douglas County Board of Commissioners, and very active in Exon's successful, 1970 campaign, is a co-owner in Jado, with Richard Donnermeyer, also of Omaha.

Douglas County Republican officials have charged that Exon signed the lease as a favor to Jackson, but Exon has denied the charges. Exon's GOP opponent in next month's election, State Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, has seized on the lease as a campaign issue. Marvel, chairman of the legislature's Appropriations Committee, called last week for a subcommittee investigation of the lease, and named Clark to chair the study panel.

Clark has subpoenaed both Jackson and Donnermeyer, along with State Labor Commissioner Gerald Chizek, to testify during the Lincoln hearings, and Exon has already said he will testify voluntarily Thursday morning.

Despite the cracks in the walls, Clark said a preliminary report from a structural engineer indicated that the building is sound.

Other members of the Appropriations Committee making the tour included: State Sens. Shirley Marsh, Lincoln; David Stahmer, Omaha; Harold Simpson, Lincoln, and Thomas Johnson, Fremont.

Gus Lieske, the former head of the Department of Administrative Services, and a former top Exon aide until he returned to private business last year, is also slated to testify during the two days of hearings.

Last week, Lieske said he objected to the lease, and did not sign it because he felt the rental rates were too high, and the length of the lease too long. Both Exon and Chizek have said they do not remember Lieske protesting at the time the lease was signed.

Marvel accompanied Clark and the subcommittee members on Wednesday's tour of the building, but Jackson and Donnermeyer, both of whom had asked to be present, and were invited, did not show.

Following the tour, Clark said he saw the cracks in the walls that had been reported earlier by a legislative staff member, but that he could not tell if the cracks were only superficial or structural in nature.

British Lord Draws 1,000 To Museum

Omaha (AP) — Britain's Princess Margaret's husband, Anthony Armstrong-Jones, attracted a crowd of about 1,000 at $25 per couple at a Joslyn Art Museum show of his photography collection.

Armstrong-Jones, who is Lord Snowdon, also attended a dinner held for special contributors to Joslyn at $500 per couple.

The contributions to the museum's coffers, estimated at $50,500, were a bit over the goal set by the Joslyn Women's Association.

Ex-Doane Athlete Wins Award

Crete (UPI) — Officials of Doane College have announced Keith Gilliland of Haxtun, Colo., will become the 18th recipient of the Honor D Award at homecoming ceremonies Saturday. The award is made annually to a former Doane Athlete, recognizing his achievements after college.

A native of Dorchester, Gilliland won 11 varsity letters from 1939-1942 and was voted captain of the basketball and track teams at Doane.

After a tour of duty in World War II, Gilliland returned to Nebraska to coach and teach at Laural High School.

He later was an insurance executive in northeast Nebraska, and then moved to Colorado to become chief operating officer of the Haxtun Community Bank.

The award luncheon is scheduled for noon Saturday.

Boy Theft Suspect

Omaha (AP) — A 16-year-old boy has been referred to Douglas County Juvenile Court in connection with the theft of a briefcase from a bank employee last Friday.

William Gallagher, assistant treasurer of First Federal Savings and Loan Association, told police he was returning from a trip to the First National Bank of Omaha, when he was stopped by a man on a downtown street corner.

In the ensuing struggle, the bandit made away with the briefcase, which contained some bank papers and more than $1,300, according to police reports. The name of the youthful suspect was not released.

Search For Plane, Crew Ends

Manila, Philippines (AP) — The U.S. Air Force said Wednesday it is ending the search for a weather reconnaissance plane with six crewmen, including a Nebraskan, lost during a typhoon-tracking mission last weekend.

Among the crew members was S. Sgt. Kenneth G. Suhr of Plainview, flight engineer.

manila, Philippines (AP) — The U.S. Air Force said Wednesday it is ending the search for a weather reconnaissance plane with six crewmen, including a Nebraskan, lost during a typhoon-tracking mission last weekend.

The spokesman said the six crewmen of the missing WC130 Hercules turbojet would be considered missing and not dead.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆
Forecast For Thursday

"Whatever is born or done at this moment of time, has the qualities of this moment of time." — Carl Gustav Jung.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis is on how you face "out issues." Money is involved — and so are emotions. Key is to use what you find in constructive, productive manner. Debts, taxes, commitments are in picture. But you can take steps which make you free!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You find that those who, in recent past, would not talk are now regular chatterboxes. That's good if you display charm, flexibility. Applies especially where partner, mate enters picture. Be gracious and avoid "I told you so" demeanor.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your home life is spotlighted — do you like what you see? That is a question which now is paramount — and what can you do about it? A sensitive person playing an important role in your life, wants you to go in direction which helps you to grow. Be smart enough to listen!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good lunar aspect coincides now with emotional responses, special dealings with children, speculation rather than logical conclusions. Emotions continue to dominate as you sort truth from fiction. This is not easy but it is necessary. Pisces, Virgo could be involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Practical matters dominate — you get the facts and you will be in position to do something about correcting past mistakes. Emphasis is on building, reinforcing structures. Older individual lends benefit of experience.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What begins as perhaps a "minor idea" reaches major proportions. Your writings receive attention, more so than usual. Your thoughts, put to paper, gain wide circulation. Greater degree of expression is indicated and that is all to the good!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New approach proves profitable. Means stress originality, independence. Invest in your own ideas, abilities. Refuse to be backed into emotional corner. You have right to live your own life. A possessive "lover" should be made aware of that fact.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle is high. Take initiative. Check Libra message. Heed inner voice. Timing, judgment are apt to be on target. Do what comes naturally. Be you and you can't go wrong. Aquarius could be in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Reports from "confidential sources" may be exaggerated. A friend, crying for attention, could conceivably play a story. Keep balance and maintain sense of humor. The rumor factory is running overtime.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can do something solid about carrying out desires. You obtain needed material. A friend shows the way, even where money backing enters picture. Be confident. Welcome experiences which come from the acceptance of social invitations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Greater changes are possible, perhaps even probable. A "talky" associate could get ball rolling. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play key roles. You could get recognition now for task performed in past. You may also be "kicked upstairs."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel writing, a variety of experiences — these are featured. Nothing is status quo — forecasts are scattered. Leave time points, details for another time. For now, grasp situation, picture as a whole. An obese friend or associate confides problem. Be receptive but don't get too involved.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are an organizer, promoter, one capable of handling money and responsibility. You are creative, love power, can imprint your style — and when you love it is all or nothing. You have been confused because of too many irons in fire this year. Much changes where that is concerned — you soon will be working on "something solid." Capricorn, Cancer persons play significant roles in your life.

What is the best investment for the little guy, with just a little savings in these times of double digit inflation? Local experts give some advice.

Making Your Pennies Grow Is Not As Easy As It Used To Be

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

"Put it in the bank and watch it grow." That's what they told you when you were a child and had allowance, or Christmas or birthday money to spare.

It's still a good habit — saving money. But, in 1974, it isn't as simple as it once was.

You can still put your money in the bank, but with the inflation rate outdistancing savings account interest rates as it now is, you're not going to see your money do much growing, relatively speaking.

There are some alternatives, however, for the "small" investor (one who has from $1,000 to $10,000 to invest), who has in the past, put all or part of his or her excess cash into a savings account.

According to Jerry Sherman, proessor of finance at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, the answer to the question of what is the best financial route for the small investor "depends on the individual . . . their age, income, what they want to do with their money, and the amount of risk they're willing to take."

"Obviously, older people should buy those types of securities that have the least amount of risk. Whereas younger people with good jobs and good futures can afford a greater risk for a greater return," Sherman said.

Recently, people with small amounts of money to invest "have been buying 9% government notes," he continued. Because these four-year notes are "a direct obligation of the U.S. government," buying them "is safer than (putting money) in the bank."

However, since the availability of these notes has caused people to take their money out of banks and savings and loan companies, "I'm afraid that the government is going to eliminate the small investor and make these notes only in $10,000 denominations" and above, Sherman said.

"The other alternative" for the safety-conscious individual is to go ahead and put his money in a savings account or certificate of deposit (C/D).

If he or she does that, and "if the economy goes into a deep recession or depression, then they should have that money available," Sherman said. "In that sense, it (the money) is much safer than in a common stock."

However, "In case the economy does not go into a deep recession or depression, then common stocks at their present levels are extremely cheap . . . But there's much more risk involved," Sherman said.

According to an article entitled "Are Common Stocks A Hedge Against Inflation?" which appeared in the February, 1974 issue of "Investing" magazine, common stocks have historically been a good hedge against inflation "over the long run."

Yet, as far as short-term investing in common stocks is concerned, the article is more pessimistic. And it is especially so as far as inflationary periods are concerned.

During five such periods which occurred between 1870 and 1970, "stocks failed to rise as fast as wholesale prices during three out of the five," the article states.

Because of trends like this, John Aalborg, First Mid America Inc. stock broker, said that he "wouldn't recommend them (common stocks) for older people."

Admitting that "savings accounts, especially passbook savings, are the least lucrative way of saving money," Aalborg went on to list some alternatives that would provide greater earnings than a savings account, with essentially the same degree of safety.

Government agency bonds (federal land banks, federal home loans) are "yielding probably at least 1% to 2% higher than savings and loans and banks," he said. The bonds are written in denominations of $1,000 to $10,000, Aalborg said. And they're highly liquid.

Aalborg also suggested a "relatively new" investment possibility — the C/D pool. These are formed when a number of individuals pool their money and purchase a large C/D, which provides a greater return than a small one.

The going interest rate on such C/Ds is 9.35%, Aalborg said, and they generally reach maturity in nine months.

As far as municipal bonds are concerned, Aalborg pointed out that, as a rule of thumb, a person should be in the 30% tax bracket ($18,000 to $20,000 annual taxable income) or above before buying such a bond would be a wise investment.

However, "If you qualify, you probably would be better off with a municipal bond" than a savings account.

People willing to take a little more risk than that involved in purchasing a municipal bond could consider a "high grade corporate bond," Aalborg said.

Another stock broker who recommended corporate bonds was Dan Mulder of Dain, Kalman and Quail. Noting that such bonds are currently yielding about 9½% to 11½%, he added that, as interest rates come down, the individual investment of, say, $1,000 "is going to be worth more than $1,000."

But because the more highly-rated corporate bonds involve what Aalborg called "very long-term money," they probably wouldn't be desirable for older people.

Mulder also suggested utility common stocks and blue chip industrials as potentially good investments for the small investor.

Utilities have been depreciated some 50%, he explained, and they are yielding 10% to 15% — "which is double what the bank is offering."

Perhaps the most important advice Mulder had for the person investing money during uncertain economic times is that you should "know what you're doing and find someone you trust."

"The best time (to invest) is not when the news is good," he continued. You should "buy when the institutions are buying," and they're doing so now.

"You have to do the most with your money that you can," Mulder said. But at the present time, with "earnings down and inflation up . . . it takes guts."

Mother-Student Needs Services

"There are little bits of day care, little bits of counseling," little bits of services on campus for older students, parents.

"But it isn't enough and it isn't visible," Mary Jo Ryan, director of the University Child Care Project, said Wednesday during the fifth Women/Speak program.

Ms. Ryan described the growing minority of students on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus — the older woman and mother, the woman who has returned to school after other experiences of work or marriage and children.

The Child Care Project, funded by bits and pieces through federal, university and local sources, offers day care for infants, preschoolers and kindergarten children of low-income students at $10 a monthly fee per family. But the project, which each semester turns away more than 30 parents, cannot meet the need, said Ms. Ryan.

In addition to quality child care at a price students can afford, Ms. Ryan also suggested improvement in other areas for the older female student. These include:

—Child care for extra-cirricular and recreational activities.

—Night care for working women who return to school at night.

—Parental counseling.

—A better forum for female students' creative endeavors in music, art, dance, drama.

—A better funded women's resource center with a professional staff, counseling services for women and coordinating services for all university women's programs.

If Ms. Ryan could have her "big dream," the university would coordinate day care centers and homes around the campus for use by students, staff and faculty.

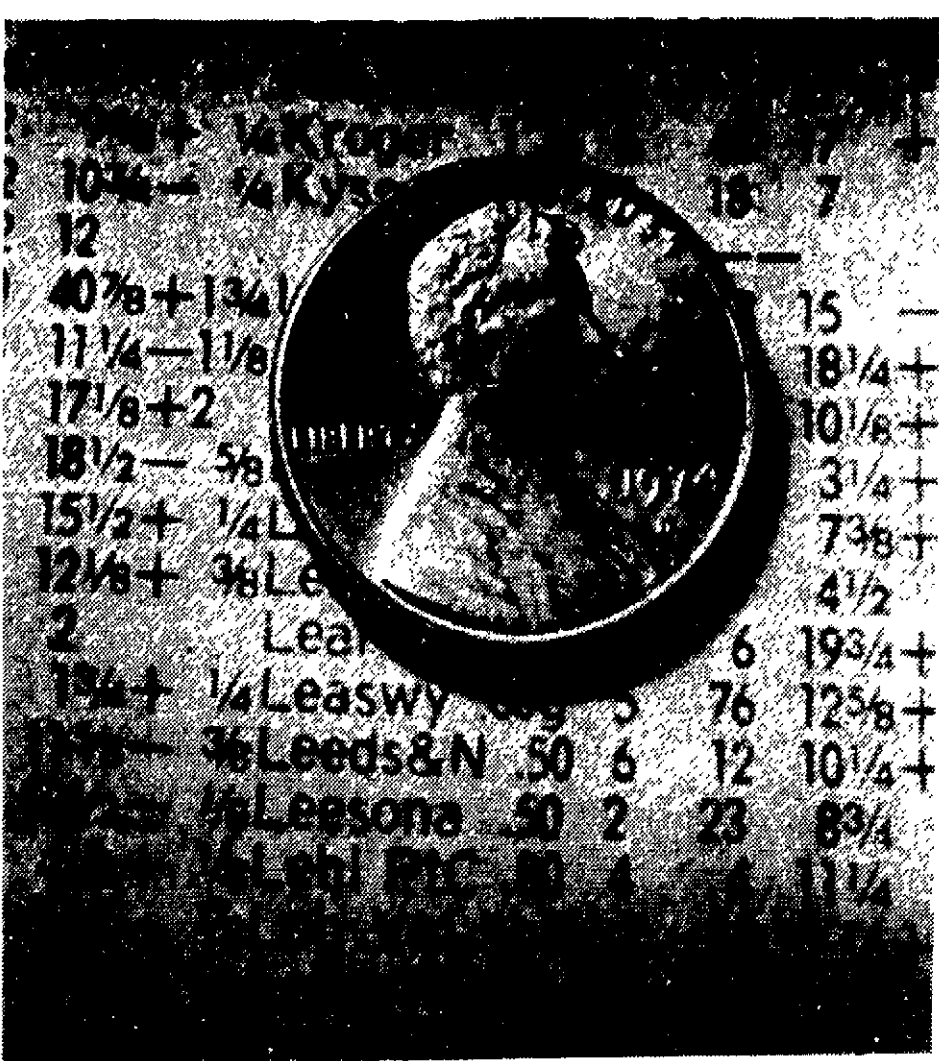

The university may step into financial aid for child care as it tries to recruit the older student in an effort to keep enrollment up, Yvonne Leung, lobbyist for Women's Lobby, pointed out.

One of the major problems with meeting the need for child care for students is that no data exists on the number of students with children or the number of students who need or use day care, said Ms. Ryan.

"The only thing we know is that 25% of the students are married," she said.

Even data on current students would not indicate the need, according to one woman in the audience who said, "You don't see a lot of the problems because they never get there." There are many of us with preschoolers, who want to go to school, but we don't know how to arrange day care. We never even get to campus."

Lt. Nancy Freebairn, Army selection officer, will speak on "Women in the Military" at 11:45 a.m. Wednesday in the UNL Student Union. The Women/Speak program is sponsored by the Student Y.

Turning To Diet Club Is Admission Of Defeat

In Wednesday's Star, staff writer Linda Olig described local diet clubs. Today medical columnist Arthur Snider explains the psychology behind overeating and diet clubs.

By ARTHUR J. SNIDER

At first they try simple delusion. They buy slimming black clothes or attractive ties or dresses with interesting necklines or large hats to detract from rotund bodies.

They try pills, diet drinks, stillman's 10 glasses of water, rice diet, grapefruit-egg diet, and every other diet fad that comes along. They try skipping breakfast and lunch, even resort to fasting for several days.

The day inevitably arrives when some personal catastrophe causes them to acknowledge they cannot control their overeating — an embarrassing rip in the seam of pants in public when bending over, crumpling a prize chair that has been in a family for decades, becoming stuck in a turnstile and freed by firemen with blow torches.

They turn to a diet club to join other fat people in a final admission of defeat.

"To do so is to really admit failure," says sociologist Nora Scott Kinzer, associate professor at Purdue University. Like an alcoholic, they must face up to their inability to control their addiction. They need help. They cannot do it by themselves.

As a social scientist, Mrs. Kinzer was able to gain access to a diet club in Indianapolis, which she has mythically named Carbohydrate Counters (CC). She was able to interview scores of members and obtain revealing questionnaires from several hundred. She arrived at some conclusions as to why group therapy is considered by obesity specialists to be one of the better approaches to weight reduction.

The typical CC member is white, fortyish, housewife and mother, although there were some men in the group. Overweight has been a lifelong problem. Three out of four members reported one or both of their parents were overweight. Over 50% were fat as children and over half were fat teen-agers. One-third were more than 100 pounds overweight.

Their addiction to food parallels an alcoholic's compulsion to drink.

"The average CC member is fixated on the taste and smell of food," the sociologist says. "She likes to cook and cannot resist tasting food in the pot.

Unlike many people who cannot eat when they get upset, the CC'er eats more when she is upset, anxious, worried or lonely. But she eats slightly less when she experiences pleasant emotions, excitement or happiness. She doesn't smoke but she eats and eats. Two out of five even dream of food.

"The CC'er can't wait to get home from the grocery with her food," Mrs. Kinzer discovered. "She feverishly rips open packages of cookies or crackers while driving home. This is another manifestation of the 'eating alone syndrome.' The CC'er works on the premise that if you eat unobserved, calories don't count."

Like the alcoholic, she equirrels away provisions. Food is concealed behind the bed, in coat pockets, under chairs, in a car trunk, underneath lingerie, in wastebaskets or a jewelry box.

She will snatch leftover food from other people's plates in carrying the firsty dishes to the kitchen. She eats while talking on the telephone, while taking a bath, while reading or watching TV. Nothing seems to distract her.

She is a professional dieter. Even though it has taken her years to put on her extra 50 to 100 pounds, she wants to lose it immediately.

"When the scales fail to register a loss for one or two days, she finally says 'to hell with it' and goes on a binge," says Prof. Kinzer.

"An obese person on a binge is a woman possessed of a thousand devils. She races through the kitchen, opening and closing cupboard doors searching for food. She eats with both hands, stuffing food into her mouth until she looks like a chipmunk storing nuts for the winter.

"She hates herself every minute for what she is doing, berating herself, vomiting for self-punishment."

Yet just before she comes to CC as a last resort she may have a last fling, rationalizing that she never will be able to adjust to the CC diet without having had the memory of one last orgy of food.

What is the secret of the diet club's success? The weekly meetings, Prof. Kinzer said in an interview. In addition to the $2 to $5 fee on joining, members pay a weekly fee of $2 to $3, including those meetings missed because of backsliding. While a diet club may be money-making, charging has been found to be necessary as a disciplinary measure.

In addition, CC follows the "prudent diet" of the late Dr. Norman Jolliffe of New York who concluded that compulsive eaters were usually ignorant of basic nutrition and needed complete retraining of their eating habits.

The diet keeps the CC'ers spending long hours figuring out their shopping lists, weighing their food, following recipe books and talking on the telephone to fellow members.

"CC'ers do not 'diet'. They 'stay on the program'," explains Prof. Kinzer. "When they have not cheated on the program, they are said to be 'legal'. When they reach their desired weight, they have 'attained goal'."

A meeting night is noisy. Members chatter about their successes and disappointments, exchange recipes, and nervously await the moment of truth — the weighing in.

"Each member has tried to dress in her lightest clothing," the sociologist says. "If wearing coats or jackets, they remove them. I have seen members take off their earrings and girdles. One woman, in sheer desperation, snatched off her wig when the scales didn't measure a loss."

Some burst into tears when the scales show a gain over the previous week. Others have explanations that seem reasonable to them.

One woman who never seemed to lose insisted that her husband urged her to eat fattening foods. Finally the weighin clerk snapped, "What you ought to do is get rid of him." At the next weigh-in, she had lost five pounds. "I really lost 185 pounds," she told the clerk. "I took your advice and got rid of him. I figured out he was deliberately trying to keep me fat so that he could needle me about my lack of will power."

Once neurotic eaters, the CC'ers can become neurotic dieters.

"Given encouragement to say 'no' to hostess or relatives, she begins to assert herself aggressively," the sociologist reports. Instead of saying, "No thank you", she snarls, "I can't have that! You know I can't have that! You are going to make me go off my diet."

Some even carry their postal scales to private homes or restaurants and their own low-calorie soft drinks to cocktail parties and occasionally, even their food to dinner parties, or at least a survival kit — sugar substitutes, con-somme packets or homemade salad dressings.

The granting of "free foods" — the low-calorie vegetables that can be eaten whenever desired, is a boon to CC'ers who want to discharge oral compulsion. Prof. Kinzer said one woman confessed eating 12 heads of lettuce in one afternoon, another ate 20 boxes of broccoli in an evening. Low calorie soft drinks are bought by the case.

'My Petition For More Space'

Hope. That word doesn't really belong in the first sentence of John Hersey's new Novel, "My Petition For More Space" (Knopf).

Nor does it belong anywhere within the confines of the grim narrative that follows.

Yet there it is, on the first page: "This morning I have some hope of reaching the petition windows."

Poor man. Poor, stupid man. His meager little hope stands as a testimonial to his species' capacity to endure; to make the best of a meaningless, hostile environment; to look forward to little victories even after all has been lost.

But who's going to tell Sam Poynter that? He's been standing in the petition line since before dawn. Waiting there in a crush of human bodies so dense that it does not permit individual movement, save perhaps the turning of a head.

It is the sixth day in a row that Poynter has stood in line, hoping to make it to the petition windows before he has to go to work.

"Every once in a while, perhaps once a minute, it is possible to shuffle one's foot two or three inches forward. Sometimes, in this shuffling, one winds up a bit off balance, but it does not matter: the crowd-pressure holds you firmly upright."

The place is New Haven. The time, maybe two, three four generations in the future.

Every day, the lines form in front of books by Cynthia

Johnson

the bureau building which housed the sixteen petition windows. Every day the people come, each with his or her own request to put before the faceless voice behind the windows. All petitions — regardless of their nature — are denied.

But yet the people come.

Poynter's petition is for more space. His allotted space in the public sleeping hall measures seven by 11 feet. It is separated from his neighbors' spaces by lines painted on the floor, as has become the practice. The most he can hope for (there it is again) is an eight by twelve space.

There are things to occupy his mind as he waits in line. Across the street, he can see the wall that surrounds the Green. And for awhile, his thoughts are transported beyond the wall.

He sees clearly, in his mind's eye "the empty grass, crosscut and gleaming; the score of majestic maples, standing apart, whose leaves turn to each other on stirring air . . . and whisper, 'Forest! Forest! Forest, brother leaf!'; the vaulting wire cages with great murmurations of sparrows in them . . ."

Many times he has stood in that other line across the street. Waiting to get a glimpse of the Green through the windows in the wall.

He thinks of his parents: "When they were alive, there was room for walls within houses. They seldom had to stand on queues for long — really only when they wanted to see exceptionally good movies."

For the most part, however, his attention is centered on the people pressed around him in the line. The retired woman who is there to ask that her 14-year-old grandson not be taught to read . . . she wants him to have a "useful skill." The janitor to his right who is petitioning for more food.

In front of him, there stands a young woman — so close is she that he sees clearly the "delicate stray blond curls on an infantile fineness" around the nape of her neck.

He can see only part of her face when she turns her head to speak to him. She cannot see his at all. Her name is Maisie: her petition, for a different job. Will she wait for him after her petition has been placed?

Hope springs eternal, they say. But who is there to tell the petitioners of their folly? No one. They have all adapted, succumbed. Busy clinging to the shreds of existence, they do not comprehend the futility that surrounds them.

In his quiet, eloquent fashion, author Hersey has in this book, said a lot about the "human condition".

Don't read it if you're prone to depression, future fear, nostalgia. And if you read it, remember to look between the lines.

It's Too Late Now

DEAR ABBY: I am a male, 29 years old. I served in the Air Force for three years. I worked with security police. I didn't like it, so I told my commander I wanted to change jobs, but he kept putting things off, so I went to the chaplain and told him I was gay and wanted out. I was sent to a psychiatrist. He believed me and got me a lawyer and I got out with an honorable discharge. I've been out for nearly four years. The Army recruiting office called me and asked me if I wanted to join the Army and get into nurse's training. (He said he knew by my record that I had worked in a hospital, which is true.) Naturally, I didn't give him any details about how I got discharged.

I am bored and would like to get back into the Army, but I don't want to be embarrassed. What are my chances for getting in?
NO NAME, OR LOCATION PLEASE

DEAR NO: Forget the Army. A caper like yours cost the Air Force time and money. And who knows, you might have another dodge up your sleeve.

DEAR ABBY: I recently hired a woman to work from 8 to 4 five days a week. I pay her a top salary by the hour to do the laundry and general housework. Fanny (not her real name) arrives at 8:00 and immediately starts to prepare herself a four-course breakfast, which usually consists of fresh fruit, hot cereal, pancakes or French toast, bacon and eggs, biscuits and four cups of coffee. I provide all the food, and have never placed any restrictions on what she may have.

After breakfast, Fanny takes a bath and changes into her uniform. By then it's 9:00.

She works until 12 noon, and then prepares herself an ample lunch which she eats while reading a foreign newspaper. This takes her one full hour.

At 1:00 Fanny resumes her work. Promptly at 3:00, she quits, takes another bath and changes into her street clothes. She leaves at 4:00.

Fanny is a good worker. She's honest, clean and dependable. But since she is being paid to work by the hour, I think a lunch break is all she's entitled to, and that she should bathe and breakfast on her own time. She lives less than a 30-minute drive from here.

If you agree with me, please tell me how to tell her.
FANNY'S MISSUS

DEAR MISSUS: Tell her in English, unless you can talk better in her language.

DEAR ABBY: "Stumped" asked how to say no to sex, since she was a divorcee and couldn't use that old "I'm saving myself for marriage" excuse. You told her she didn't need an excuse — just give him a flat "no!"

Well, that would run a guy off permanently, which may not be what the lady wants to do. Perhaps she would like to get to know him better.

I suggest that she say, "Don't rush me." That's not a flat "no," and she doesn't run the risk of hurting the man's ego.
ODESSA, TEXAS

DEAR ODESSA: "Don't rush me" has a ring of promise to it that may be misleading. And how long must a man remain in a holding pattern before the lady no longer feels "rushed?"

Opening lead — king of hearts.

There are plays that border on the fantastic and raise the question of how anyone can be expected to be smart enough to make them. But bridge is a game founded on logic, and it is therefore possible for anyone to come forth with an unusual play that is sensationally effective.

Consider this deal where West led the king of hearts—East signaling with the ten—and continued with a heart to the ace. East returned the deuce of hearts to South's queen, whereupon West—a player of sound mind—discarded the ace of clubs!

As a result, declarer went down one. The best he could do was score three spades, a heart, three diamonds and a club.

Had West discarded a spade or a diamond, instead of the ace of clubs, South would have made four notrump by leading a club at trick four—going up with the king if West followed low—and playing another club at trick five.

West's extraordinary discard was well conceived. He realized that East's return of the deuce of hearts from the 9-8-7-2, all equals at this point, was a signal suggesting an entry card in clubs. This was in accordance with the suit-preference convention by which a low-card return indicates interest in a low-ranking suit, while a high-card return—say, the nine of hearts—would indicate interest in a high-ranking suit (in this case, spades).

Once East had denied a spade entry, the ace of clubs discard became logical, as it was clear that the contract could not be stopped if South had the queen of clubs. The next step in the reasoning—that East had the queen—clearly indicated that the ace of clubs was not an asset, but a liability that had to be quickly disposed of.

Kissinger Says U.S. Must Settle Down

©The New York Times
New York — Secretary of State Kissinger said here Wednesday that the Vietnam war and the Watergate crisis were over and it was time that Americans "made peace" with themselves.

In a speech at the Alfred E. Smith Memorial Dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Kissinger said "the bitterness that has characterized the national debate no longer has reason or place."

"For more than a decade we have been torn by war and then by constitutional crisis," he declared. "We have been enervated by our exertions, and perhaps even more by self-doubt. But now the war is over and the crisis resolved. It is time we made peace with ourselves."

He said governments must always make difficult choices and judgments, and these were difficult even in the best of circumstances.

But he said government decision-making "may grow dangerously erratic in a pervasive climate of distrust and conflict."

Kissinger, who returned to Washington Tuesday night after a seven-day trip to the Middle East to set up a framework for the next round of Arab-Israeli talks, seemed to be stressing a recurrent theme of his: that national reconciliation was crucial now.

He has been disturbed by the continuing disunity in the country that he believes has sapped the confidence of Americans in their government. Kissinger, who has come under increasing criticism himself, has been concerned by the attacks on President Ford for his pardon of former President Nixon.

But behind specifics, Kissinger has privately expressed the view that people should have a certain minimum trust in their elected officials; without this trust, governments have difficulty in functioning, he has said.

In private Kissinger has also been concerned about the economic crisis facing the Western world, due largely to the rapid rise in oil prices. He has talked about the possible collapse of Western societies and the takeover by Communist Parties in several countries. He referred to this concern when he said Western countries faced "basic questions."

"Can democratic societies summon the will and understanding to make sacrifices whose necessity will never be self-evident until it is too late, in the wake of catastrophe caused by lack of foresight?" he asked.

"Can the bureaucratic state provide vision and creativity when lulled into complacency by the apparent efficiency of routine? Can independent nations act in concert to avert a global tide which will otherwise surely engulf the very autonomy they seek to preserve?"

Kissinger Proposals Rejected, Paper Says

By United Press International
Egypt and Syria have rejected proposals for a limited Israeli pullback and an Arab declaration of non-belligerency put forward by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger during his latest Middle East Mission, the Beirut newspaper As Safir said Wednesday.

The pro-Libyan newspaper quoted "Arab sources" as saying Kissinger's mission "was met with difficulties in Cairo and Damascus and his proposals were not accepted in the two capitals."

It also reported the Soviet Union had started sending large quantities of new arms to Egypt shortly before the current Moscow visit by Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi.

In Damascus, Kissinger heard

"harsh" words from Syrian leaders and President Hafez Assad told him Syria would accept only total Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories and the restoration of the rights of the Palestinian people, As Safir said.

Syria insists that discussions should take place within the context of the Arab-Israeli peace talks in Geneva and in the presence of the Soviet Union and representatives of the Palestinian people, As Safir quoted Assad as saying.

Motorola Sales Earnings Rise

New York (AP) — Motorola, Inc. reported that sales and earnings set records for the third quarter.

Net income for the quarter was $24.05 million, or 86 cents a share, compared with $22.48 million, or 81 cents a share in 1973. Revenues advanced to $348.58 million, up 30% from the $290.28 million a year ago.

Wilbur Mills Meets The Press

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., returning to Arkansas Wednesday, met reporters at the Little Rock Airport. Mills was returning to his home state for the first time since the Tidal Basin incident in Washington more than a week ago. Police said Mills was intoxicated and a female companion plunged into the basin. Of the incident, Mills said he was still embarrassed. He returned to begin his campaign for re-election.

Women Inmates Free Hostages

ARMAGH, Northern Ireland (AP) — Women inmates of Armagh Prison, angered at reports their "menfolk" had been killed in rioting at another jail, held a warden and three women guards hostage for 14 hours before releasing them unharmed early Thursday, prison officials said.

The 100 women reportedly ended the siege after they were assured by a Roman Catholic prison chaplain and a Protestant clergymen of the safety of the inmates at Maze prison, where rioting erupted the night before. The Maze rioting Tuesday night set off a series of disorders throughout Northern Ireland Wednesday protesting internment of suspected terrorists without trial.

The rioting at the Maze, outside of Belfast, and the incident at Armagh, 35 miles southwest of the city, drew demonstrations of support in Belfast, Londonderry, Newry, Armagh and Lurgan.

People formed human barricades in the streets, hijacked vehicles, set fire to cars and pelted soldiers with rocks.

Police reported that seven persons, including two British soldiers, were injured in guerrilla gunfire and bombings in Roman Catholic areas of Belfast.

Voters To Decide Whether Students Should Sit With Regents

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska voters will decide in November whether to provide for automatic student membership on the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

Under the terms of proposed Constitutional Amendment 1, student body presidents from each of NU's three campuses would gain non-voting membership on the board.

Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, this year's Republican gubernatorial nominee, sponsored the bill proposing the constitutional change.

First Proposed Vote

His original LB323, introduced in the 1973 Legislature, proposed a voting membership for students.

When it was killed by the Unicameral's Constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee, Marvel gained approval to revive the bill on the floor, then hold it for alteration in the 1974 session.

The compromise version, eliminating student voting, was enacted by the Legislature on a 35 to 10 vote.

'Work Within'

Marvel contends students should have a voice in governance of their university.

A Nebraska Wesleyan University political science professor himself, Marvel said students should be encouraged to work within the institution for desired reforms. Their membership on the board could give other regents a broader point of view in making decisions, he has said.

Proponents of the constitutional amendment also suggest it would provide for "consumer participation" on the board.

Without such a voice, students are now the victims of taxation (tuition) without representation, it has been argued.

Not Now Prohibited

Opponents of the proposal contend that students should be no more favored than any other group in representation on the board. A student can now become a voting member of the board if he is elected just like any other regent, it is suggested.

If students need a guaranteed voice on the board, then so may faculty members and other university employees, opponents say. There should be no quota system in any elected governing board, they argue.

Current members of the board are elected by district for six-year terms.

Under the proposed change, student members would relinquish their seats when their terms as campus presidents expired.

2 Other Votes

Two other minor constitutional changes will go before the voters for decision.

Amendment 2 would change the date for convening the Legislature each year.

Under current provisions, the Legislature opens its session at noon on the first Tuesday in January. Amendment 2 would change that to 10 a.m. on the first Wednesday after the first Monday in January.

The proposal, sponsored by Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln and approved by the Legislature on a 32 to 14 vote, was designed to eliminate future legislative sessions on New Years Day.

The 1974 Legislature convened for only 10 minutes on Jan. 1, then adjourned to watch Nebraska's Cotton Bowl clash with Texas on television from Dallas.

Technical Change

Amendment 3 would remove constitutional language which states that "every (legislative) order, resolution or vote, except on questions of adjournment," must be presented to the governor.

Proponents of the change argue that the language is obsolete since the governor has authority to act only on bills. The proposal would not alter the governor's authority to veto bills, all of which would still be presented to him for action.

The change was proposed in a bill enacted by the Legislature on a 37 to 9 vote. It was sponsored by the Rules Committee, headed by Sen. Herb Duis of Gothenburg.

Suez Expansion Contract Goes To Penta-Ocean

Tokyo (AP) — Penta-Ocean Construction Co., of Japan, said it has signed a $168.7 million contract with the Egyptian government to enlarge the Suez Canal.

Penta-Ocean officials said the project calls for the Japanese firm to enlarge the canal to enable passage of 150,000-ton ships.

They said construction will begin in late 1975 and with completion scheduled for 1979.

Norwegians Taller

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Norwegian soldiers are an average of 3 1/4 inches taller than their predecessors were in 1900, the Defense Ministry says. Statistics show the average height is 5 feet 10 inches now, compared to 5 feet 6 1/2 inches earlier.

CROWD . . . spread out across airport area.

Crowd That Saw Ford Made Up Of 5,000 Individuals

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

You can say that many children were present, accompanied by teachers and parents. You can say that about 100 people waved signs and chanted in protest of limited amnesty, Wounded Knee prosecutions and military spending. You can say that pretty girls filtered through the crowd, handing out promotional material for Republican candidates.

But when it comes right down to it, the crowd that assembled for President Gerald Ford's appearance in Lincoln was simply a large number of individuals. About 5,000 of them, according to police estimates.

Woman In Wheelchair
One of these individuals was in a wheelchair, carrying a pumpkin in her lap.

"If at all possible I'm going to give this pumpkin to President Ford," said Mrs. Margie Noble of Valparaiso. "If I can't give it to him I'll put it in a box and mail it to him."

"I wrote him a letter on the WIN program (to fight inflation). We're already doing it. We've got a garden 150 feet long and 125 feet wide. Our small one is 100 feet long and 60 feet wide. We've filled one 20-foot freezer and have another one two-thirds full."

Mrs. Noble said she accomplished all this while working 40 hours a week as a tailor. She also managed to injure her foot when she fell while riding her son's motorcycle.

Oldsters There Too
Joe Klingel, 81, and his wife, Grace, 71, were standing near a chainlink fence at the rear of the crowd space in front of the three flatbed trailers that formed the speakers podium, and the band and press platforms.

"We're here because we're interested in the world," Mrs. Klingel said. "We just want the world to go the best."

"I think he (Ford) is going to do all right if he's just left alone," she said.

Much farther away from the speakers podium, in a roped-off area that authorities had apparently designated for those who appeared likely to voice dissidence to Ford's policies, was a younger man, playing a harmonica.

Papier Mache Head
Not much of him was visible. He was taking a stunt wearing a huge papier mache head of President Ford. There were dollar signs in the President's eyes.

The man, Tom Headley, said he felt Ford was coming to Lincoln on a public relations mission, "to convey the idea that everything is happy and everything is okay."

That isn't correct, Headley said. He said Ford supports "big business" and is anti-labor, an orientation Headley said he does not agree with.

Eighth-grader Jeff Westwood, on his way to the speech site, said the best thing about the seeing Ford was "getting out of school."

'I Don't Like Him'
"I don't like him," the Yankee Hill student said.

Judy Wilson, 14, on the other hand, said she supports Ford.

"I have to be for Ford and (Rep. Charles) Thone," she said, "because that's my dad's job."

It turned out her father, Glenn Wilson, is executive-director of the Republican State Central Committee. Judy said her mother and father chartered a buss to bring about 70 Irving Junior high students to the rally.

Cheers, Chants
News that Air Force One, bearing the President, had touched down, elicited cheers and chants from the crowd.

People began leaving shortly after the President began speaking.

"We've been here since 12 and it's getting a bit warm," said Duane Schmidt as he, his wife and two children headed for the car.

It's Wish Come True As Boy Meets Ford

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Seven-year-old Brian Svoboda's wish came true Wednesday.

He met President Gerald Ford.

It all started last week, when he heard on the radio that Ford was coming to Lincoln.

"He said, 'I want to meet the President,'" recalled Brian's father, Don Svoboda, of 1820 N. 62nd. "I told him it was a million to one chance, but to write (Rep. Charles) Thone."

VIP Section
Monday, Thone's office called the Svoboda's. It was all arranged. They would sit in the VIP section at the airport rally and Brian would meet the President.

As promised, Ford came by after his speech Wednesday. Brian said Ford asked him if he had anything to sign his name on.

Brian handed him his autograph book. As a favor for his girlfriend, Emily Williams, he handed Ford a newspaper story of Ford's inauguration.

Ford had time only to sign his name twice and to shake Brian's hand and Mrs. Svoboda's hand before the crowd swept him away.

"I yelled after him, 'I hope you win the battle against inflation,'" Brian said.

Dream Come True
It was a dream come true for a youth who has been interested in the presidents ever since he visited Mt. Rushmore when he was about three and one-half years old.

Brian now has seven or eight books about presidents and can recite all the presidents in order and knows many of their vice presidents.

"Brian's been kind of unusual for us," Don said. "When he was two and one-half he was standing beside me one night and he read the headline off the sports page."

What's he going to do after meeting the President?

"I think I'm going to return to normal. All week I've got publicity. There's been a feature about me across the state. This will be over in a week I'm sure."

PROTESTERS . . . carried a variety of signs.

Governor Enlists

Nebraska Democrat Gov. J. James Exon Wednesday enlisted in President Gerald Ford's "Whip Inflation Now" (WIN) effort.

As Ford headed from his plane to the podium to address a crowd gathered at Lincoln Air Park West, Exon asked Ford who was sporting a WIN button on his lapel.

"Where is my WIN button?" Ford eagerly removed his and gave it to Exon to wear. Exon was on hand to briefly welcome Ford on his first visit to Nebraska as President. After escorting Ford to the podium, Exon left.

Exon said, "I don't endorse all the principles of WIN, but I think all must recognize that something must be done about inflation."

First Stop For Intoxicant Police Station, Not Center

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

A publicly intoxicated person apparently will have to spend time at the police station before deciding between jail or the proposed alcohol detoxification center, said Bob Adams, Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs (LCAD) executive director.

He told members of the Comprehensive Alcoholism Planning Committee (CAPC) Wednesday that on-going negotiations between him, Don Nielsen, LCAD president, and police and city officials have resulted in modifications of the informally agreed to police procedures for handling public intoxicants.

"It's something we can live with," Adams said, "but it's not what we wanted."

What CAPC and the parent LCAD wanted was for the public intoxicant to be presented the alternative at the location where he or she was taken into police custody.

To Go To Police Station
"As we understand it," the agreement now is that all persons arrested for intoxication will be taken directly to police headquarters, unless emergency medical treatment is required, he said.

A revision of police procedures for handling intoxicants was necessitated by the hoped-for Jan. 1 opening of a detoxification center to be operated by the Salvation Army at 7th and P Sts., under a contract with LCAD. The City Council has approved a $94,200 grant to LCAD for the center.

Adams said subjects would be taken first to police headquarters because many are found to be involved in other criminal acts that are discovered hours after they have been arrested for intoxication; record checks can be then made on the arrested parties to determine if they are being sought for other offenses; and persons may be tested for blood alcohol content.

Following all the checks, the person would then be provided the alternative, but would be "maintained" at police headquarters until transportation to the detoxification center is available.

Opportunity For Center
The agreement now under consideration also recognizes a jailed intoxicant's opportunity to opt at any time for the detoxification center rather than jail and court procedures.

Although the detoxification center is scheduled to open Jan. 1, Capt. George Snelser of the Salvation Army said the deadline may of necessity be moved back one month.

The Salvation Army has the responsibility of renovating and furnishing the facility at an estimated cost of $80,000.

"We do not have the money," Snelser said, adding that he is playing a "waiting game" with potential sources of funds.

The center will house 14 men and four women at one time. The complete detoxification program will have a three-day duration.

Training Plan Funded

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf announced Wednesday that the city has received a $746,730 grant to set up an employment and training agency.

The agency, known as the Comprehensive Employment and Training Agency (CETA) will provide on-the-job training to disadvantaged youth still in school or out of school.

The program handling training for young people will be administered through the Lincoln Public Schools, Schwartzkopf said. An adult work experience will be administered by Claudia Robinson.

The overall CETA program will be supervised by Joe Horak, assistant manpower planner for operations of CETA programs.

All persons who are eligible for the program will be paid while they learn various jobs.

Additional services will be provided through the Lincoln Job Service and the Southeast Community College.

Lincoln received the grant through the 1973 CETA Act.

City Parks Need Money—Hilligus

The 4,500-acre city parks system needs "one dickens of a lot of money," said park superintendent, Dick Hilligus.

The Chet Ager Nature Center, at Pioneer Park, received no capital improvement funds for the current fiscal year, despite requests for reforestation, bridges, animal shelters and pond dredging, he said.

Hilligus' remarks came during the second installment of the Lincoln Community Services and Junior League "Pieces of a City" series, designed to foster citizen involvement in the community.

More than 40 persons participated in the communion with nature, touring the nature center and Lincoln's Children's Zoo and hearing about various volunteer opportunities available at those facilities.

Although the Children's Zoo is not directly related to the city parks system, a "good marriage" exists between the two, said Alan Bietz, director of the Children's Zoo, operated solely by the Arnett R. Folsom Zoological Society.

The Children's Zoo, which celebrates its 10th anniversary next season, is now classified as a botanical garden, possibly the first facility in the state to receive such a designation, Bietz said.

It also has received nationwide recognition, he added, noting that the society has been invited to present a paper on international zoo design at a symposium in England this spring.

During the past season, the zoo broke all attendance records with 102,000 people passing through the gates, including an attendance of 10,000 in a single day, Bietz said.

Abrams Tank Slated

Washington (UPI)—The Army's next tank model will be named in honor of former Chief of Staff Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, a famed World War II tank commander under Gen. George S. Patton.

Three Artists Plan To Return For NU Stints

Three artists will return to Nebraska as visiting artists-in-residence for the academic year 1974-75 at the University of Nebraska.

Zara Nelsova, a cellist, will give recitals Nov. 10 at the University of Nebraska-Omaha and Nov. 12 at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The rest of her time will be spent teaching.

Charles Treger, a violinist, will perform Nov. 15 at Wayne State College, Nov. 16 at Kearney State College, and Nov. 18 at the Hastings public schools and Hastings College.

Grant Johannesen, a pianist, will be in Nebraska Dec. 6 through Dec. 10, but his schedule is not yet determined.

Adult Learning Confab Set At Nebraska Center

A two-day conference on adult learning will emphasize non-traditional education Oct. 28 and 29 at the Nebraska Center.

Dr. Allen Tough of the Ontario Institute of Research, Toronto, Canada, will discuss the impact of adult students on schools.

The conference is sponsored by the Department of Adult and Continuing Education at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Playhouse Sets 2 Puppet Shows

Two puppet shows have been scheduled for the Community Playhouse by the playhouse and Bill Baird's Puppet Theatre.

Pinocchio will be shown 7:30 p.m. Monday and 4 and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the playhouse. The Dragon and the Dentist will be shown 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Admission costs $1 for children and $1.50 for adults.

It is a project of the Mid-America Arts Alliance and the Nebraska State Art Council.

Sesostri Shrine Band Will Play

Residents and guests at four Lincoln homes for senior citizens will have an opportunity to hear the Sesostri Shrine Band Sunday.

The band will play at Mahoney Manor at 2 p.m., at Homestead Nursing Home at 2:45 p.m., at Madonna Home at 3:30 p.m. and at Clark Jeary Memorial Manor at 4:30 p.m.

Survey Shows:

Demos Hold 55-31 Lead

By LOUIS HARRIS
As the 1974 off-year elections move into their final weeks, the Democrats hold a 55-31% lead over the Republicans for congressional seats. If this lead holds up, it seems all but certain that the November results will produce substantial Democratic gains and Republican losses, both at the congressional and state levels.

There is little doubt that President Ford's pardon of former President Nixon, inflation and the recession will drive many independents and Democrats who favored Nixon back in 1972 back to vote Democratic this November. Late last month, the Harris Survey asked a cross section of 1,272 likely voters nationwide:

"This fall, in the election for Congress here in your district, if you had to decide right now, would you vote for the Republican or Democratic candidate for Congress?"

Louis Harris Elections Near

In tracing the trend of voter preference over the past year, it is evident that the Republicans are in worse shape than they were in late 1973 and are only marginally better off than they were during the last days of Richard Nixon's occupancy of the White House.

One of the few areas of hope for the Republicans in these final weeks can be found in the 54-38% majority that agrees with President Ford's belief that "a vote for candidates for Congress pledged to cut federal spending" would be "a major step in combating inflation."

Working against the Republicans is another phenomenon that has emerged in recent years: the public's preference for a bi-partisan government. At the moment, people feel more comfortable with a Democratic-controlled Congress and a Republican White House.

San Francisco — If memory serves — (and we're not getting service like we did in the old days) — the Great Depression was attacked with slogans: "Prosperity is just around the corner!"

The bookstores are full of quickie paperbacks showing how inflation can be good for you — if you play your cards right.

"How To Make A Million While Being Blown Up."

I read it but can't seem to remember what I read. ("Drat it!" said grandma. "I tied this string around my finger for something.")

I don't think inflation will be excoriated by wearing a WIN button on the lapel.

Well, sunny autumn days around here. Healthy and Jack-be-nimble. Hell, the black cat, brought home a mouse this morning. She turned him into casserole — following the advice of the White House to cut down on canned food and buy the cheaper cuts.

Fascinating mornings around Snug Harbor. Painters painting — up-lifting the face of the buildings to sell as condominiums. Cat appears with mouse — I drove her out with a broom.

I said: "Outside, cat. We don't fight inflation in the parlor."

While the coffee perks, Nelson Rockefeller explains he is really a good guy even though rich.

President Ford explains he thinks Rockefeller is OK even if he is rich.

Rockefeller says he isn't really rich. It's all in trust. And even the trust isn't what is used to be what with the stock market like it is.

("It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God," said my grandfather. "Mark X, 25," he said to show he knew his Scriptures.)

For awhile it was fashionable for everybody to get himself audited. President Lyndon B. Johnson audited himself because somebody said he had $10 million. He was a rich man.

He lined up his holdings: Piggy banks and radio stations. Ranches and 10-gallon hats to give away when folks came down to the ranch. He proved he was only worth $4 million, not $10 million.

He was not rich. Just comfortably well off.

Barry Goldwater rushed out and got himself audited. He came up with $3 — $1 million better for the presidency than Johnson.

It's hard to prove you're not rich when you are.

Life Begins At Forty:

Widows Found Unresponsive

By ROBERT PETERSON
There are a lot more widows around than widowers. No question about that. But are most of these widows eager to remarry? From quips and gossip on the subject, one gets the impression that most widows are eager to get their hands on any single male who wears shoes and can be led to the altar. But single men occasionally write this column claiming widows play might hard to get.

Here's a man who writes, "Where are all those lonely widows one hears about? If they're really lonely and ready to consider remarriage, why don't they show it?"

"I'm 61, own a watch repair shop, and have been a widower four years," he continues. "I guess I've met a hundred widows and not one of them has chased me.

"I'm not bad looking, still have some hair, shave regularly, and seem to have normal intelligence. But these old gals seem to think I've got some scheme up my sleeve whenever I ask if I can see them again.

"On those few occasions when they've invited me to their homes or apartments, they pepper me with questions about my work, where I'm from, who I'm related to, and how successful I've been. Everything seems to lead up to how much money I've got salted away. But when I try asking them some simple questions like what their husbands did for a living or whether they're getting by all right financially they clam up to tell me it's none of my business.

"From the likes of those I've met, I figure I'm better off single. However, there are few things worse than being lonely and I'd certainly like to meet a good sincere woman who would show a little interest in me regardless of the size of my nest egg."

Keep trying, chum. With all the widows in the world there must be many who would like you and would meet your requirements. But don't be too upset by their queries concerning your background and financial stability. There have been so many dismal tales of damsels duped by confidence men that wise widows ask all the questions they can think of, and fall in love after considering all the facts at hand.

Fambrough: KU In 'Must Win' Game

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Don Fambrough, Kansas football coach, has joined Nebraska's Tom Osborne in calling Saturday's game between the two schools "a must" win situation.

Speaking at a media luncheon in Topeka Wednesday, Fambrough said, "A win for Kansas is almost a must if we are to gain serious consideration for a major bowl bid."

Earlier this week, Osborne said the Cornhuskers would "really be in the soup" if they don't beat the Jayhawks.

None of the major bowls are scheduled to have representatives in Lawrence Saturday, but observers are scheduled to be on hand from the Peach, Gator and Fiesta bowls.

Orange Bowl and Cotton Bowl officials have watched Nebraska in previous games and on Monday Cliff Kern, president of the New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association (Sugar Bowl), visited Osborne and KU athletic director Bob Devaney in Lincoln.

Fambrough said Kansas will have to play the kind of a game it played against Texas A&M if it hopes to defeat Nebraska. Two weeks ago, KU upset the highly-ranked Aggies 28-10.

Don Baker, KU sports information director, disclosed the game in the 51,500-seat Kansas stadium is a complete sellout.

Scott McMichael, the Jayhawk quarterback who leads Big Eight in passing and total offense, turned in a feat against Texas A&M that was overlooked by the conference service bureau.

His 12 of 14 passing was the best completion percentage ever by a Big Eight passer in one game. His average of 857 erased the 818 mark on nine of 11 set by Nebraska's Steve Runty against UCLA last season.

(Big Eight individual statistics are on page 21).

Harrah's Tahoe Race Book has made the Cornhuskers a 10-point favorite over Kansas, but they're being picked to lose by many of the nation's top handicappers, including Mort Olshan, whose ratings appear in The Star every Friday morning.

In other Big Eight games, Oklahoma is a 24-point choice over Colorado at Boulder, Kansas State rates a one-point edge over Iowa State at Ames, and Oklahoma State is listed by six over Missouri in somewhat of a surprise at Stillwater.

Perhaps Oklahoma State's open date last Saturday is one reason for the choice because it has given most of coach Jim Stanley's injured warriors a chance to heal. Still out, however, are fullback Robert Turner and flashy freshman Terry Miller. Stanley hopes both will be back in time for the Kansas game Nov. 2.

In between the Missouri and Kansas games, the Cowboys will play Nebraska in the Cornhuskers' homecoming game Oct. 26.

Iowa State coach Earle Bruce reports his star tailback Mike Strachan "possibly can play Saturday" against Kansas State. Luke Osborne and Fambrough, he called the game "a must" for both teams.

Strachan injured a knee in the Cyclones' 34-7 loss to Colorado but not until his 23 yards rushing moved him into fourth place on the Big Eight career rushing list ahead of Colorado's Bobby Anderson. Strachan now has gained 2,742 yards.

About the only coaches who aren't calling their games "musts" are the winners of last week. These are Oklahoma, Colorado and Missouri.

"Our kids are more confident and poised on defense," CU coach Bill Mallory said. "You can sense that from the sidelines. They go in like a bunch of vultures. I'd like to play Michigan and LSU again. I'm not saying we'd win, but things would be different." Colorado held Iowa State to 67 yards rushing.

Oklahoma's Barry Switzer said Colorado's Bill Waddy is "the finest back in the conference other than Joe Washington." Washington, of course, plays for the Sooners.

Waddy now has gained over 100 yards rushing the last three games in a row, including 145 yards in 22 attempts against Iowa State.

Missouri coach Al Onofrio has refused to say whether sophomore Steve Pisarkiewicz will get the starting quarterback job against Oklahoma State, but added, "It's very obvious Steve will see a lot more action."

It was Pisarkiewicz who sparked the fourth quarter blitz that upset Nebraska 21-10 here last Saturday.

Kansas running back Laverne Smith avoids tackle.

Osborne: NU Same Team

By Associated Press

Nebraska coach Tom Osborne thinks he still has a good football team, despite early season losses to Wisconsin and Missouri.

"We are not a different football team," Osborne said Wednesday. "We are still the same good team."

Osborne qualified that, saying, "However, I can't really explain what happened during those two fourth quarters," referring to fourth quarter losses to Wisconsin and Missouri.

"We're just as well-conditioned as we were last year, and we don't have any depth problems. I don't really know what it is."

Osborne said his injured players from the bruising Missouri contest should be ready for Saturday's Kansas game at Lawrence, except starting defensive cornerback Dave Butterfield.

"Butterfield is still out with the neck trouble he suffered in the Missouri game," Osborne said.

"We thought he could practice today but he couldn't. Unless Dave makes a remarkable recovery tomorrow, it looks like Jim Burrow will start against Kansas."

Osborne said the Jawhawks have great offensive personnel and its defense is comparable to Missouri.

Osborne said Kansas coach Don Fambrough thought he had a good defense last year and that this year's would be even better.

"But I think Kansas' big change this year is on offense. Their running the ball better this year and of course they can still pass."

Huskers Run Record To 11-0

Nebraska's women's volleyball team defeated UNO 15-5, 15-0 in the Women's P. E. Building Wednesday night to run their season record to 11-0.

Jan Zink, Vicki Ossenkop and Susie Heiser were the leading scorers for the Huskers.

Nebraska next meets Chadron here Saturday at 9 a.m.

A's Beat Dodgers

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's and their patty-cake batting attack came within one victory of their third straight world championship Wednesday night—thanks to a home run by pitcher Ken Holtzman, who didn't swing a bat all season, and a pinch-single by Jim Holt, who might as well not have swung one all season.

The A's kayoed the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2 in the fourth game of the World Series and now lead the battle for baseball's world title 3-1. One more victory and the A's will be winners again.

The only problem may be who gets the Most Valuable Player trophy.

The way things are going, it may be Charley O, the A's mascot mule.

"I'll be very disappointed if it goes six games," said Oakland captain Sal Bando, who delivered a key single Wednesday night. "We all want to end it tomorrow night."

The fifth game is set for Oakland at 5:30 p.m., PDT, Thursday.

Once again, the A's hardly overpowered the Dodgers. They got an early run, courtesy of Holtzman's third-inning homer and then exploded for four big ones in the sixth, a rally that included only two base hits.

One of those hits belonged to Holt, whose pinch-single delivered two runs and sent the A's in front to stay. It was his second pinch hit of the Series after going to bat 25 times without a hit in the final weeks of the regular season.

"You are on a hot streak," said A's Manager Alvin Dark, complimenting the closest thing to a batting hero that Oakland has had.

"Yeah," replied Holt. "If two hits is a hot streak, then I am."

Holtzman, deprived of his bat during the regular season by the American League's designated-batter rule, continued to make up for it during the Series. His third-inning homer was his fourth hit in the last two World Series. The other three were doubles.

With Andy Messersmith pitching for the Dodgers, Holtzman ripped long shot that sailed into the left-center field stands.

"He got behind on me and I was looking for a fastball and got it," said the stylish Oakland left-hander.

As Holtzman trotted around the bases, fireworks exploded in celebration and Messersmith hung his head. "I was going slow around the bases, trying to enjoy it a little," said Holtzman, who had hit only two home runs in his major league career before, this one.

"I was light-headed going around. I remember tripping over first base. I forgot where it was."

Holtzman's homer gave the A's a lead that didn't last very long. In the fourth inning, Bill Russell ripped a two-out, two-run triple up the right-center field alley and the A's trailed 2-1 as they came to bat in the sixth.

By that time, the pregame words of owner Charles O. Finley must have been burning in the A's ears.

Finley summoned his team to a clubhouse meeting just before the game to read published quotes attributed to Dodgers' left fielder Bill Buckner, de-moralizing the Oakland players.

"He said there are only three of you who are any good," said Finley, reading Buckner's quote. "I want you to go out and show them that's wrong."

Thus inspired, the A's went out and won the ball game in their typical fashion, combining three walks, two singles, a sacrifice and an error for their big rally.

Billy North opened the sixth with a walk and Messersmith concentrated on keeping the speedy runner close. He threw over a couple of times and North stopped back easily.

Then Messersmith tossed over once more—once too often.

The ball bounced past first baseman Steve Garvey and North scooted to second on the pitcher's error.

The opportunistic A's wasted no time. Bando snapped an 0-for-11 Series slump with a single to right that scored North and tied the game at 2-2.

"When North got to second, it was to my advantage because I could go to the right side of the infield," said Bando. "He threw a fastball inside and I blooped it over the first baseman's head."

Messersmith then walked Reggie Jackson on four pitches and Joe Rudi sacrificed the runners to second and third. That brought up Claudell Washington, inserted into the lineup after Finley's clubhouse meeting.

The young outfielder already had two hits and the Dodgers weren't about to let him play the Cinderella hero so Manager Walter Alston ordered him walked.

Now the strategy wheels were really whirling.

Dark sent Holt, a left-handed batter, up to swing against right-hander Messersmith. Alston had lefties Jim Brewer and Geoff Zahn warming up in the bullpen.

"I knew they were there," said Holt. "All I had to do was look down and see them."

But Alston decided to stay with his starter. "Messersmith had good stuff and I wanted to save him," explained the manager. "Brewer hasn't pitched much of late."

Bando scored easily and Jackson churned for home. Joe Ferguson scooped up the ball in right field and fired a strike to pitcher Steve Yeager.

Despite suffering a 7-6 Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference loss to Midland last week, Doane head football coach Ray Best and his Tigers aren't about to lay down, play dead and relinquish their string of three conference titles.

But just the same, opponents aren't going to play dead just because they're facing Doane College either according to Best, especially now that the Tigers have lost two games.

With a 1-1 conference record, the Tigers will host Hastings, also 1-1 Saturday for homecoming at Simon Field in Crete and Best said he feels his squad is physically sound.

Kansas' McMichael In Jaynes' Shadow

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Try as he might, Scott McMichael can't escape from the shadow of David Jaynes.

"It's a question I'm asked all the time," said the sophomore who succeeds all-American Jaynes as the Kansas Jayhawk quarterback. "Everyone wants to compare me to him. I try not to copy anyone. . . I don't think about what Jaynes did. I just try to do my job."

While Jaynes rewrote the KU passing record book over the last three years, many Jayhawk backers felt coach Don Fambrough would be in trouble at the quarterback post this season.

McMichael is proving those prognosticators entirely wrong. Like Jaynes, he's the Big Eight's leading passer after the first five weeks of the season. The 6-3, 187-pounder has completed 43 of 77 passes (with four interceptions) for 655 yards in directing the Jayhawks to four victories in five outings.

He's also the Big Eight's total offense leader with 26 rushing yards to go with his 655 passing yards. The total yardage of 681 yards (for a 136.2 yard average output each game) is seven yards better than teammate Laverne Smith's 129.2 yard average.

The task, however, becomes somewhat harder as McMichael assumes control of KU's offense when Nebraska invades Lawrence for a Saturday match against KU.

"Nebraska losing (21-10 to Missouri) can be both good or bad to us," he said. "It shows that they can be beat, but they'll probably come here fired up. We're going to have to get up for that game."

This will be the first time McMichael will see Nebraska. He was a redshirt last season and didn't accompany the KU team to Lincoln that dropped a 10-9 encounter to the Cornhuskers.

He was really not a redshirt in the typical sense. He sustained a cracked clavicle in the fall's first scrimmage only one week after drills began. He recovered before the season ended, but KU coaches decided to redshirt him.

"It was a little disappointing to be sitting on the bench, but looking back, it was the best thing that could have happened to me," he noted. "It gave me an extra year to play and I probably wouldn't have played much behind David Jaynes last year, anyway. It really gave me time to mature."

While this is the first year he's been playing for the varsity, McMichael has been quite effective in the last two spring games at KU. Undoubtedly his performance in those contests aided Fambrough in his decision to give McMichael the reins of this year's offense.

Last spring, he guided the Blue team by completing 7 of 17 passes for 88 yards. A year ago, he hit 4 of 10 attempts for 103 yards and one touchdown.

That was expected after his accomplishments at Shawnee Mission West High School. He earned all-state recognition for completing 52 of 118 passes his senior year for 774 yards. He also rushed for 503 yards of 74 carries and averaged 36 yards on 38 punts in which opponents were only able to return four.

McMichael received "about 12" offers from collegiate football teams (Nebraska was not one of them) and he decided to enroll at Kansas. And he's been happy at Lawrence.

"I like running this offense," he said. "It's not as much passing as last year, but we have a lot of good people here."

While Fambrough is pleased with McMichael's efforts, he isn't about to be drawn into comparisons between his present quarterback and Jaynes, now the third-string quarterback for the Kansas City Chiefs.

"They're both real good, but they're different types of quarterbacks," Fambrough said. "I wouldn't even want to try to compare them just now. Let's just say they've both done well."

McMichael, however, is concentrating on Nebraska.

It's going to be a big game for us," he added. "I'm sure Nebraska will be tough especially coming off a loss. That will just make it a little tougher for us."

East Picked To Beat Knights In Top Game

You might call Friday's matchup between Lincoln Southeast's pass receivers and Lincoln East's defensive secondary a classic one in prep football terminology.

The attention is likely to focus there when the two unbeaten Capital City powers collide at Seacrest Field in a game with conference and state championship overtones.

Third-rated Southeast's passing attack hasn't been shut down in six games this season. It's clocked for 852 yards for a 142-yard average.

Split end Randy Clements, slotback Randy Foster and tight end Dave Hasselbroek have been Knight quarterback Tim Hager's primary targets.

They're considered three of the state's best receivers. Clements has caught 25 passes for 342 yards and two touchdowns. Foster has snagged 16 passes for 310 yards and four TD's.

East's secondary considers itself equal to the challenge. The Spartans turned in a masterful defensive job last week in a 10-7 win over Lincoln Northeast.

Monster Bill Holmes, half-backs Tony Leftert and Karl Voss and safety Ed Mulligan have been exceptional this fall, according to East coach Lee Zentke.

Voss, an all-city cornerback last year, accomplished a rare prep feat earlier this season with three interceptions in East's 21-8 win at Grand Island.

"Those four will really get tested against Southeast," Zentke predicted after his secondary's near flawless performance against Northeast.

Last week's prep picking effort was 119-44-6 for a .721 showing. Breaking it down, the performance was 27-13-2 for Classes A & B, 26-26-2 for Classes C & D and 26-7-2 in the eighth-man ranks.

The season log now reads 609-219-25 for 736.

This week, it's:
Lincoln East (6-0) v. Lincoln Southeast (6-0), Friday night, Seacrest Field — Since you have to pick a winner, the choice is East . . . on the basis of a coin flip.

Lincoln Northeast (5-1) at Hastings (3-3), Friday night — The Tigers, last-minute losers three times to unbeaten teams, are itching to win a "big one."

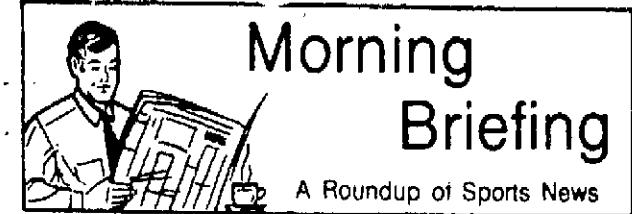

The Rockets are vulnerable after last week's disappointing loss, but they'll survive the challenge.

Lincoln Pius X (5-1) at Council Bluffs (1-4) St. Albert's, Friday night — The Thunderbolts yielded a whopping 355 yards rushing last week to Omaha Holy Name. Vince Aldrich and Don Kelley will make the right adjustments to stop the leak.

Ralston (1-5) v. Lincoln High (4-2), Saturday night, Seacrest Field — The Links continue building momentum before next week's long road trip to North Platte.

Elsewhere, it's Waverly over Auburn, North Platte over McCook, Omaha Westside over Omaha Burke, Grand Island over Norfolk, David City Aquinas over Fremont Bergan, Grant over North Platte St. Pat's, Raymond Central over Louisville, Superior over Geneva and Grand Island Central Catholic over Hastings St. Cecilia.

Football

Running backs Mercury Morris and Hubert Ginn of the Miami Dolphins are doubtful for the game with the Kansas City Chiefs. Morris twisted a knee and Ginn has sore ribs and a foot injury.

Missouri coach Al Onofrio was named United Press International's Coach Of The Week after his Tigers upset Nebraska, 21-10, in Lincoln.

The New England Patriots probably will sign one of the veteran ends available because of injuries to wide receivers Darryl Stingley, Reggie Rucker and Randy Vataha. Available are Fair Hooker, Eddie Hinton, Dick Gordon and Ron Sellers to replace Stingley, out indefinitely with a broken left forearm. Rucker and Vataha will be able to play.

San Francisco 49'er coach Dick Nolan hasn't made it official but Kansas State rookie Dennis Morrison will probably get the nod again at quarterback for the game Sunday against the Los Angeles Rams.

Pittsburgh Steeler running back Franco Harris, out with a sprained ankle, is expected to return to the lineup Sunday when the Steelers play the Cleveland Browns.

Northwestern football coach John Pont announced that junior tailback Greg Boykin out with a broken leg, will be redshirted.

Mike Popovich a two-year letterman and starting offensive guard this season, has been dropped from the University of Oregon football team for disciplinary reasons, athletic department officials said Tuesday.

Basketball

The Philadelphia 76'ers Wednesday suspended holdout Fred Carter, the team's leading scorer last season, and cut rookie guard Coniel Norman and guard Larry Cannon, bringing their roster to the 12-man NBA limit.

"Golden State Warrior guard Jeff Mullins, a 10-year veteran, will be out of action for three weeks because he fractured a bone in his hand, the team reported.

Mahdi Abdul-Rahman, an all-American at UCLA in 1964 when he played as Walt Hazzard, was placed on waivers Wednesday by the Detroit Pistons and was expected to retire from the league. Abdul-Rahman has been approached by the infant International Basketball Association about becoming a player-coach when the league begins play in Europe, a Pistons spokesman said.

The New York Knicks reached the 12-man NBA limit Wednesday by placing Howard Porter and Rudy Jackson on the injured list.

The owners of the New Orleans Jazz, who paid $6.15 million for the NBA's newest expansion team, will get their first look at the Jazz when they meet the New York Knicks Thursday night to open the 29th NBA season.

Baseball

Tony Oliva, the Minnesota Twins' designated hitter, had numerous bone fragments and cartilage removed from his right knee during surgery at a Minneapolis hospital Wednesday.

The Montreal Expos extended the contract of their manager, Gene Mauch, through the 1976 season with what was announced as an increase in salary, although no figures were disclosed.

Bob Wirz, public relations director for the Kansas City Royals, has resigned to become public information director for the office of baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, beginning next month.

The St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday purchased righthanded pitcher Rich Hand from the California Angels for an undisclosed price.

Baltimore Mayor William D. Schaefer appointed a special commission of eight civic leaders Wednesday to find ways for preventing the loss of the Orioles to another city. Oriole Board Chairman Jerold C. Hoffberger has said he will sell the team if offered a minimum of $12 million.

Wesleyan Gals Defeat Doane

The Wesleyan women's volleyball team defeated Doane in three sets Wednesday night at Doane, 15-10, 5-15 and 15-10.

Kathy Stoekinger was the leading scorer for the Plainsmen with 13 points for the night. Arlene Erickson added eight.

ILLUSTRATION: Air Force versus Yale

If the Air Force were to meet Yale on a neutral field, Air Force's Handi-Rating of 20 would hold a 10-point advantage over Yale's 30 rating.

If the game were played at AIR FORCE, allow Air Force 3 points for playing at home. AIR FORCE would become a 13-point favorite.

If the game were played at YALE, allow Yale 3 points for playing at home. This would make Air Force a 7-point favorite.

Yeager Still Asserts Jackson Out

OAKLAND (AP) — Los Angeles Dodger catcher Steve Yeager still believes he tagged Oakland's Reggie Jackson before Jackson tagged the plate Wednesday night.

That was one of the key plays in the four-run sixth inning as the A's won 5-2 to take a 3-1 edge in the 1974 World Series.

"I thought he was out," Yeager insisted. "I could be wrong. They say the video tape indicated he was safe. I thought he slid away and hook slid to his left. His left leg slid over my shin guard. I know his body mark was six feet from the plate and he doesn't have a six-foot leg."

Losing pitcher Andy Messersmith, dressed and out of the clubhouse before the game ended, agreed with Yeager. But when asked about his own pitching, he replied, "Not now," and hurried toward the exits.

Bill North walked to start the sixth and went to second when Messersmith threw an attempted pickoff into the dirt and away from first baseman Steve Garvey.

"It hit the dirt right in front of first base toward second, where the dirt is chopped and sandy. The ball just stayed down," said Garvey.

"Sal Bando's single (following North) was off the fists and there's nothing you can do about that," explained Yeager of the clubhouse before the game ended, agreed with Yeager. But when asked about his own pitching, he replied, "Not now," and hurried toward the exits.

Pinch-hitter Jim Holt then singled to knock in two more runs.

"It was a changeup and high, not one of Andy's good pitches," Yeager related. The hit scored Bando but Joe Ferguson's throw to Yeager was on the line as Jackson crashed into the catcher.

Manager Walt Alston left Messersmith in until the end of the inning even though another run scored.

"He was wild but I thought he had good stuff," the manager said when asked why he didn't pull the right-handed Messersmith and insert a southpaw against the left-handed hitting Holt.

"Also, Jim Brewer hasn't pitched that much lately," Alston said.

The manager admitted the Dodgers had their backs to the wall in this best-of-seven series, but "this has been a bounceback team all season. Although they average only 26 (years of age), they play like seasoned professionals."

Yeager was asked what type of pitch rival hurler Ken Holtzman knocked out of the park in the third inning for the first Oakland "A" fast ball right in his wheelhouse," Yeager said. "He wasn't pitching as well as he did a couple of weeks ago, but with a little luck he was out of the big inning. I think North was out on that 2-2 pitch."

Instead umpire Don Denkinger of the American League, working behind the plate, called it a ball and another ball put North on base.

There was a question whether Garvey, fielding Rudi's sacrifice bunt, should have thrown to third instead of going for the safe out at first.

Shooting For Kids

While hunting may be on the decline as a national pastime, sport shooting is gaining by leaps and bounds. It's even reaching into the school systems of Nebraska.

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission is in the process of formulating a network of competitive trapshooting, smallbore rifle or air rifle shooting programs into the state's high school system.

The program is being headed by game commissioner Ken Zimmerman of Loup City, one of the state's most dedicated trapshooters. "There are several reasons why a program of this sort would be important," Zimmerman began.

"First, we've got a problem, even in the school systems, where anti-guns and anti-hunting sentiments are gaining in popularity. Most of it is begun because of a lack of education. The kids take what they are told, and maybe never get a chance to know the other side.

"This program is not to be started with the idea of beating the other side," Zimmerman explained. "It's being formed to help educate the kids and let them make up their own minds."

Several Nebraska schools are already "into" shooting programs, according to Game and Parks coordinator Rocky Hoffman. He says Grand Island, Hastings, North Platte and Omaha's Bryan High Schools have smallbore rifle shooting. Lincoln and Norfolk are among those with trapshooting teams.

Other States Trying

North Dakota and Missouri are operating similar programs, according to Hoffman, but no state has a completed system.

The shooting programs would be provided as an extra-curricular activity, much like football or basketball. But, unlike the major competitive sports, shooting would not prove to harbor handicapping limits according to youngster's physical size or ability.

The smaller youngsters are capable of shooting with equal ease and accuracy as compared to a physical football type. Youngsters at the Nebraska State Trapshoot in Doniphan prove it annually.

"Competitive shooting would permit the youngster too small for football or not strong enough for wrestling or limited in some other respect to compete for his school," Zimmerman said. "Once we get the program started, I think the thing will grow."

The implementation of a program is also a step toward the formation of more "lifetime activities" provided through our school systems, according to Zimmerman. Unlike football or basketball, competitive shooting can stay with a youngster through his gray hair years ahead.

The Game and Parks Commission is eyeing a helping-hand program for the schools interested in adding shooting to their lists of competitive sports.

According to Jim Wofford, head of the Information and Education Division, financial assistance in the purchase of shotguns or rifles is being studied. The aid should help schools with border line attitudes toward giving students a chance to make up their own minds about sport shooting.

Kings Release Pair; Sign May

Kansas City (AP) — Don May, a 6-foot-4 forward released last week by the Philadelphia 76ers, was signed Wednesday by the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, another National Basketball Association team.

To get down to the mandatory 12-player limit, the Kings announced the release of Dennis Stewart, a 6-7 forward, and Mark Browne, a 6-11 center. May played college ball at Dayton. Browne played at Missouri Western and was the Kings' seventh-round draft choice this year. Stewart, signed as a free agent, played at Michigan.

Lincoln Loses Bid For 1976 Olympic Trials

Washington (UPI) — The city of Long Beach, Calif., today was awarded the swimming trials for the 1976 Olympic games.

Lincoln, Neb., had been one of the cities bidding for the trials. The joint U.S. Olympic men's and women's swimming committee announced the decision after extensive deliberation.

Wendell Groth of Lincoln, a member of the board of directors of the Olympic committee, said Lincoln narrowly missed out on the final ballot. Groth, a Lincoln businessman, had presented the city's bid.

White's Dogs

Grab Wins

Winnipeg, Manitoba — Lincoln's Rob White's schipperke "Karma" went winners bitch and best of opposite sex in the first of three dog shows here last weekend.

Karma was reserve winners bitch the second day and on the third day was winners bitch, best of winners and best of breed.

Rob's mother, Ann, showed "Am.Ch. Rowann's San Rowver," a fawn pug, to winners dog, best of winners to complete its Canadian championship, and "Am.&Can.Ch. Rowann's Happy Ho Tei," a black pug, went best of breed and group three the first day and best of breed and group four during a second day Manitoba Pug Specialty, and was best of breed and group two the third day.

Another Lincoln pug, "Rowann's Tiny Bubbles," owned by Mr. and Mrs. Rich Churchill, was reserve winners bitch the first day, winners bitch and best of winners to complete its Canadian championship the second day and was winners bitch and best of winners the third day.

A Wahoo miniature longhaired dachshund owned by Mr. and Mrs. Gary Simanek went winners bitch all three days for three Canadian points.

LA's Garvey Now Father
OAKLAND (AP) — First baseman Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers became a father for the first time shortly before the fourth World Series game Wednesday.

His wife, Cyndy, gave birth to a daughter at Valley Presbyterian Hospital near Los Angeles. Steve said both mother and daughter were doing fine.

Garvey, who talked to his wife from a dugout telephone at the Oakland coliseum, bounded onto the field as if he were walking on air.

"It's a baby girl," Garvey announced, cheerily, "six pounds and 13 1/2 ounces. Her name is Krishna Lee. That's the eighth girl in the last nine born to Dodger players and it's getting to be a habit here."

Gal Golfers To State

The first Nebraska State High School Girls' Golf Tournament will begin Thursday at Omaha's Benson Park Golf Course and already the meet is an instant success.

Entries have been received from 38 teams and 152 girls.

Included in the total are participants from the four Lincoln high schools fielding teams — Southeast, Northeast, East and Plus X. There are no class divisions in the statewide field.

Tee times begin at 9 a.m. on both the front and back nines.

Omaha Marian is the team favorite for the one-day, 18-hole event. Marian is undefeated in nine dual meets and three invitational tournaments. Leading the Marian charge will be prominent statewide golfers Teresa Wanek and Sharon Slattery.

Southeast, also undefeated this season, is expected to give Marian its toughest challenge. Senior Jane Deeter leads the Knights.

Deeter and Kathy Hughett of Lincoln East are expected to vie with Wanek and Slattery for individual honors.

Other top golfers expected are Valerie Skinner, North Platte; Cathy Curry, Columbus; Jane Walsh, Omaha Burke; Karen Ekholm, Omaha Westside and Kay Newhouse and Mary Desch, Grand Island.

Net Champ Aim Of Top-Seeded Rugg

Omaha — With Creighton Prep's Matt Iwersen off the scene, a new singles champion is assured in the State High School Class A Tennis Tournament here Thursday and Friday.

Iwersen ruled as champion for three years before graduating last spring. Lincoln High junior Larry Rugg hopes to pick up where Iwersen left off and start a 2-year championship reign.

Rugg, the Trans-Nebraska Conference champion, was awarded the No. 1 Class A singles seed by the Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA).

Larry Rugg as a sophomore when he was ousted in the semifinals by eventual runnerup Dan Weaver of Lincoln Southeast.

Two other Lincoln netters gained seedings. Southeast's Randy Johnson, who upset Rugg in the Eastern 1-80 Conference meet last weekend, is the No. 2 seed.

Fremont's Kerry Sutton and Lincoln East's Pete Allman were awarded the Nos. 3 and 4 Class A seeds for the meet at Omaha's Dewey Park.

The Hanscom-Brandes Indoor Tennis Center will be used in case of inclement weather. Matches begin at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. both Thursday and Friday.

The state's largest 16 schools, according to male enrollment, will compete in Class A. The Class B field has 21 schools.

Omaha Ryan senior Dan Sloboth, the Metropolitan Conference singles champion, gained the No. 1 seed in Class B singles competition. He is the defending state champion.

Doubles seedings include:
Class A — 1. Kerry McDermott-Doug Battles, Grand Island, 2. Greg Johnson-Jeff Wraga, Fremont, 3. Jim Perry-Mark Kramer, Lincoln Southeast; 4. Bob Cassman-Brian Worrall, Omaha Westside.
Class B — 1. Bob Huskey-Barry James, Omaha Brownell-Talbot; 2. John Johnson-Chuck Lechner, Millard, 3. Greg Kirby-Tom Salestrom, Kearney, 4. Bill Hammel-Eric Ramsey, Ralston.

Yale Dean Prefers Domestic Draft Of Physicians

Omaha (AP) — Yale University's medical dean said Wednesday that he would prefer to see a physician draft for domestic service rather than what is being proposed in medical education bills before Congress.

Dr. Robert W. Berliner said "it would be fairer."

Berliner said he doesn't believe compulsory service is the solution to medical care in underserved areas.

The legislation now before Congress would require medical schools accepting federal educational funds to reserve 25% of their class enrollment for students who accept federal tuition help in return for two years of work in underserved areas.

"Service Time" This would catch those students who are least able to afford to go to medical school and make them give service time," Berliner said.

He said it would be more equitable to make all graduating students subject to service. "You wouldn't need all of these doctors, of course, and you'd have to select them by some lottery system, probably," Berliner said.

Legislative attempts to force people to serve in physician-short areas are not the answer, he said. These areas would have a series of physicians coming and going and never really wanting to be working there.

The answer, instead, is to be found in greatly expanding the use of paramedical personnel, such as nurse practitioners and physician assistants, and extension of medical center expertise into outlying areas, he said.

Other Conditions

Berliner, former deputy

WIN Committee Forms To Fight, Study Inflation

A Lincoln Committee to WIN has been formed to fight inflation and study its causes, according to Lincoln's State Sen. Steve Fowler, acting committee chairman.

Members are labor and business leaders, educators, housewives and economists, Fowler said.

They intend to provide suggestions on how to fight inflation and supply the President with a list of local inflation fighters by Thanksgiving, according to Herb Schimek, acting vice chairman and consultant to the Nebraska State Education Association.

director for science at the National Institutes of Health, said the bills have other conditions that would be hard to live with.

For instance, he said, they generally include a requirement for increasing the size of medical school classed by about 10%.

"I know Yale, which has 102 students in a class, would be hard pressed to put 10 more students in the physical facilities we have," he said.

If the legislation is passed, medical schools could avoid its objectionable features by not accepting federal educational funds. However, most medical schools would find another source of money only with difficulty, he said.

Raising tuition is one possible alternative, but a number of schools would have to take this step. Berliner said no one school wants to be charging about $1,500 more than the rest. Berliner was in Omaha to receive the A. Ross McIntyre Award, presented by the University of Nebraska Medical Center for his contributions to science and medicine.

Name Has 'Bad Points'

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Nixon, the football head linesman, said his name "has its good points and its bad points." It depends upon the fortunes of his namesake, the former president.

"The reaction I got when they announced the officials each week depended on what he'd done recently," explained Nixon, a football official for nearly 26 years.

"But last month was the first time I really got drowned by boos. It was so loud you couldn't hear them announce the other officials."

STACY KEACH - FREDERIC FORREST R

Lagerstrom: Energy Woes Will End All The 'Whoopie'

Dr. John E. Lagerstrom didn't want to paint a picture of gloom and doom, but when it comes to energy supplies and costs, "we used to go all over with dad's car and raise whoopie, but ladies and gentlemen, it ain't goin' to be that way no more."

And when it comes to projections for agricultural production, the directions of those charts will depend wholly on the answers people formulate to cope with imminent energy problems, he said.

Lagerstrom, chairman of the Department of Electrical Engineering at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, urged a group during the Nebraska Food Industry Symposium here Wednesday to help pull together possible answers to the energy ailments.

Five Energy Sources

The five major sources of energy, according to Lagerstrom, are oil, natural gas, coal, water and nuclear power. Although oil started out as a patent medicine cure for rheumatism, it now supplies 46% of our total energy needs and sells for $1.50 per million BTUs. In comparison, coal sells for 50¢ per million BTUs (about a sack full of coal), electricity goes for 2¢ per kilowatt hour, and natural gas is priced at $1.22 for a million BTUs.

With prices high and ever climbing, Lagerstrom pointed to expensive nuclear power plants as the answer to our long range energy problems because nuclear energy sells for about 20% of the cost of coal. "The cheapest thing is to build nuclear plants. The energy that comes out is so darn cheap, you just can't afford to do anything else. And nuclear resources are an energy source we can forecast for the next 1,000 years."

At the same time, the immediate forecasts for Nebraska's agriculture production depend heavily on energy available and irrigation, said Doug Murfield, director of the State/Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics. Based on data collected through the Strength Through Agricultural Research (STAR) program, he pointed to a necessary growth in irrigated land in order to handle needed increases in ag production. The figure for irrigated land now stands at five million acres. But that figure should jump to eight million acres by 1980.

Murfield said: "Factors that could slow this figure down are fuel availability, cost of equipment and water resources. The bullish factor for irrigation is the world demand for food."

How To Top Soybean Yield?

Soybean exports will continue to rise, he said, but a basic factor in any increase in soybean figures is the fact that no major breakthrough is in sight on how to increase soybean yields.

Increases in alfalfa hay depend on irrigation, fertilizer, improved varieties and continued control of major diseases and insects. Sugar beets have been increasing at a good rate in western Nebraska and the potential is great, Murfield said.

Projections for various crops by 1985 call for 142 bushels per acre irrigated and 117 non-irrigated corn, 54 bushels for wheat, 35 for soybeans, and 3.3 tons per acre of hay.

4-H Quartet From Tekamah To Go To Ohio

Tekamah — Four Tekamah 4-H'ers will leave Tuesday for Columbus, Ohio, where they will represent Nebraska in the National Intercollegiate and Junior Quarter Horse Judging Contest Oct. 24.

Team members include Luanne and Julie Thorndyke, Janelle White and Sandy Gammel. Accompanying them on the trip will be Burt County Extension Agent Ron Puls and Dick Sheets of Tekamah, the girls' horse club leader and judging coach.

The team earned the right to represent Nebraska by placing second in the Nebraska State Fair 4-H horse judging contest in September.

Marvin E. Copple of Lincoln is providing $1,000 to the top two State Fair teams, Adams and Burt Counties, to offset their traveling expenses when they compete in horse judging contests in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Stock Mart Prices Fall; Trade Light

New York (AP) — Disappointing earnings reports and continued profit taking pushed the stock market lower in light trading Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 16.11 to 642.29, and losers outnumbered gainers 954 to 462 among the 1,760 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

On Tuesday the Dow lost 15.10 to end a rally over six previous sessions that saw the widely watched barometer advance as 99 points.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped 55 to 37.12.

Exchange volume declined to 14.79 million shares from 17.39 million share the previous session.

Analysts said profit taking was a natural response to the big runup of recent days.

"It's nothing more than a normal reaction to an exuberant rally," said Ralph Acampora, of Harris, Upham & Co.

He expects another rally to the 700 range for the Dow before long.

Three big losers for the day were Xerox Corp., the most-active Big Board issue, off 5 1/2 to 64 1/2; Eastman Kodak, off 8 1/2 to 64 1/2; and Upjohn Co., down 5 1/2 to 44 1/2.

Xerox was down 7 1/4 points Tuesday when it reported only a 6.5 per cent gain in earnings. Upjohn Wednesday reported earnings of 61 cents a share against 57 cents a year ago, while Eastman Kodak reported an earnings decline to $1 a share from $1.16 a share.

On the American Stock Exchange, Houston Oil & Minerals was the volume leader, up 1/2 to 24 1/2, the second consecutive gain for the stock since the company's announcement of an offshore Texas gas discovery.

The Amex market-value index fell .23 to 68.93.

Sierra Club Sues To Stop Plant

The Sierra Club Wednesday took a two-barrel shot at a proposed coal-burning power plant near Sutherland.

The national club took up the cause of the local Platte Valley club in Hershey and filed a complaint against the plant in federal district court and a notice of appeal with the Nebraska Department of Environmental Control (DEC).

The filings seek to stop construction of the Nebraska Public Power District plant until NPPD installs a "scrubber" to reduce sulfur dioxide emissions.

Attorney John Gale of North Platte is representing the club.

NPPD has resisted the installation because it says the scrubber is too expensive and unreliable.

To be successful, the club must convince a federal or state judge to reverse a permit for construction signed Sept. 16 by DEC Director Dan T. Drain.

Gale said Drain signed the permit, despite the recommendation of a hearing examiner that the permit not be granted. Nine days of hearings were held in Lincoln in May.

Acting Director George Ludwig approved the permit in July with the stipulation that NPPD include a monitoring system to measure ashes from the plant's chimneys and amend its contract with coal suppliers to require daily analysis of coal shipments from Wyoming to measure the coal's sulfur dioxide content.

When NPPD said it had complied, the permit was granted.

Gale said the Sierra Club is contesting whether NPPD has shown that the Gerald Gentleman plant near Sutherland complies with federal antipollution regulations.

Specifically, Gale said, the Sierra Club believes NPPD has not gone far enough in monitoring the density of smoke from the plant and insuring use of coal with low sulfur dioxide content.

Sulfur dioxide hurts vegetation, he said.

NPPD attorney Robert Crosby of Lincoln said he could not comment upon the two filings Wednesday because he had not yet read them.

Gale said the suit in federal court names NPPD, the DEC and DEC Director Drain as defendants.

The notice to the DEC is the first step toward appealing the permit to Lancaster District Court. The Sierra Club has 10 days in which to file in the district court.

Either the federal or Lancaster court could stay the permit and hand the case back to the DEC for further hearings, with instructions on evidence and the federal regulations, Gale said.

NPPD owns the land near Sutherland and has begun excavation, Gale said. It expects to accept general construction bids in December, he said, with plans for the plant's completion by 1978.

The plant is a 650-megawatt electric generating plant. It would be the largest plant in Nebraska and cost $200 million to build.

The Sierra Club has been fighting its construction since 1971.

Pulitzer-Winning Writer Speaks At UNL Oct. 24

Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist and author David Halberstam will discuss the Washington, D.C., power structure, in a public speech 3:30 p.m., Oct. 24, at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Nebraska Union.

National power and men who had it were the topic of Halberstam's book, "The Best and the Brightest," published in 1969, for which he won a Pulitzer.

His first Pulitzer came in 1964 for his dispatches to the New York Times from Indochina,

Businessmen Asked To Support Beefing Up Of Guard, Reserves

Nebraska businessmen are being asked to encourage their employees to join the National Guard or the military reserve in the interest of a strong national defense, James M. Roche, former president and board chairman of General Motors, said Wednesday.

Roche is now chairman of a national committee for employer support of the guard and reserve, an appointment given to him in 1972 by former President Nixon.

The committee, which reports to the secretary of defense, is asking employers around the country to sign pledges indicating they will encourage their employees to join the guard or reserve, and promising that employees who do so will not be penalized in any way.

"I think it is apparent to everyone, regardless of our differences in other areas, that the national security of our country must be a foremost consideration of each and every one of us," Roche told a news conference.

Roche noted that under the Defense Department's "Total Force Concept" the guard and reserve would be expected to provide about 80% of military manpower needs in an emergency.

Roche said that, in the past, some employers have been reluctant to hire people with guard or reserve commitments, have made it difficult for them to get needed time off for training, and in some cases penalized them by withholding promotions

With the country's dependence on the "Total Force Concept," such policies can now be a detriment to the national defense, Roche said.

He said about 48 million American workers are now covered by pledges from their employers, supporting guard and reserve membership and guaranteeing the employee will not be penalized in his job in any way because of such a commitment.

Freight Business Up

St. Paul (UPI) — Murphy Motor Freight Lines, Inc., has reported third quarter revenues of nearly $14.5 million, up 33% over the same period one year ago. Net earnings were $240,000 or 26 cents per share.

Small Oilmen Bid Top Royalties

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Oil men offered the government $1.4 billion in instant cash on 149 offshore leases Wednesday, plus a "buy now, pay later" gamble on eight others.

The high-priced sea bottom tracts lie in the Gulf of Mexico off the oil-rich Louisiana coast.

For the first time in the 20-year history of federal offshore oil bidding, the government gambled on long-term income instead of quick profits, putting 10 tracts up for the highest royalty bid.

Smaller companies offered the highest royalties on oil they take out of the eight special tracts that drew bids. Highest was a combine of Basin Exploration and Texas International, which offered the government 78.14759 per cent of future profits on oil or natural gas that drillers find on the tract.

The tract involved lies about 80 miles off the coast, south of Morgan City, La. Twelve other companies made bids, with Exxon Co., U.S.A., the most conservative at 20 per cent.

"It was about like we expected," said R. W. Bybee, operations manager of Exxon's exploration department and an outspoken opponent of any switch to royalty bidding. "I don't think it will go on long," he added. "The Office of the Budget up there in Washington likes that cash."

Of the 149 tracts offered for the traditional "bonus" plus one-sixth royalty, the top bonus bid was $117.6 million by a combine of Mobil Oil Co., Gulf Oil Co. and Chevron Oil Co.

They bid for 3,007 acres in a rich and proven oil area, about three miles south of the Mississippi River's South Pass.

The Department of Interior's Bureau of Land Management put 297 tracts up for lease, but only 157 drew bids.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton ordered the experiment in high royalty bidding to see if it would attract more independents to offshore drilling.

3 Boeings Ordered

Tehran, Iran (AP) — Iran Air managing director Ali-Mohammed Khademi announced that his company has placed a $120 million order for the purchase of three Boeing 747s.

Kearney State Vice President Resigns Post

Kearney (AP) — The vice president for administration and planning at Kearney State College announced his resignation Wednesday.

Dr. Gary Olson will become president and chairman of the board of Computing Systems Inc. in Omaha.

Olson developed the management information system at Kearney State, a budgeting system which established the allocation of revenue based on programs rather than numbers of students. The system is now being used in planning and budgeting for post-secondary education throughout the state.

Olson came to Kearney State in 1967 from Illinois State University. His resignation becomes effective Nov. 15.

Memberships Of 3 Tribes Will Be Posted

The Bureau of Indian Affairs is preparing to post tribal membership rolls for the three tribes affiliated with the Fort Berthold Reservation in South Dakota, according to its Aberdeen, S.D., office.

The rolls, posted on the reservation, are there to allow interested people to review the memberships and protest any names they disapprove of.

The deadline for enrollment application is Nov. 1.

Nance County Bid Approved

Fullerton (AP) — The Nance County Board of Supervisors Tuesday night approved a low bid of $394,415 for construction of a new courthouse.

The bid was submitted by Lacy Construction Co. of Grand Island.

Officials said work on the project would start as soon as a contract is signed.

State Aid Bill Debated By Opposing Senators

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

State Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell called LB772, the state aid to education bill, a "struggle for a $155 million prize."

Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner called it a "reasonable solution for equity in funding education."

Whitney: "We can design a better law."

Warner: Opponents of the law "do not have an alternative that they're offering the people of Nebraska."

Studio Audience

And so it went in a debate on the controversial bill before a studio audience at the Nebraska Educational Television Network, to be broadcast Wednesday night.

Warner and Whitney represent the polarization on LB772 over questions of local control of schools, changes in taxation to pay for operating schools, and more equal educational opportunity for all children.

The 1974 Legislature overrode Gov. J. James Exon's veto of LB772, which will triple in two years the amount of aid the state will provide schools, from the current $55 million annually to more than $155 million.

Warner was the principal author of the bill, designed to have the state assume half the cost of education in Nebraska schools by 1976-77. By then, the intention is to increase state sales and income tax support for schools to equal a decreased amount of local property tax dollars.

To Be On Ballot

Whitney and Omaha Sen. David Stahmer, also in the televised debate, led the opposition to LB772 and succeeded in a referendum drive to place it on the Nov. 5 general election ballot. A lawsuit attempting to block the law from voter repeal on retention is now before the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Whitney said LB772 has "fundamental defects," including inadequate provisions to measure uniformly the wealth of school districts. "Not all income-producing property is on the tax rolls," he said.

Because county assessors do not appraise property at the same rates throughout Nebraska, Whitney said "state aid to schools may be 50% greater in some school districts than others" under LB772.

Costs To Double?

Whitney also faulted what he called the "assumption" that all school districts can provide equal educational opportunity for $800 per pupil. Operational costs will be double that amount in two years, he predicted.

Despite spending limits imposed by the state upon schools, Whitney attacked the provision, saying voters may choose to remove the ceiling and "spend, spend, spend" to get the most state aid possible under LB772.

In an apparently contradictory statement, Whitney later said "local school boards will lose the power to tax," and local control will be eroded because "65 schools will get over 70%" of the state aid.

Whitney predicted that, with LB772 in effect, "property taxes will pay 80-90% of operational costs of one-third of the schools," and half the school districts "will not get any reduction in property taxes."

Sen. Stahmer, in a brief statement, said farmers who need property tax relief will not be aided by LB772, because they hold no political power base.

No Perfect Solution

Warner acknowledged that LB772 has "some disparities" and offers "no perfect solution." But he said opponents of the bill are unwilling to offer better legislation.

To questions by the audience of about 45 educators, school administrators and board members and citizen group representatives, Warner said Whitney's claims are "untrue that this bill encourages spending." He said Whitney has introduced similar bills increasing state aid beyond LB772's provisions, while saying local control would not be eroded.

Warner said Nebraska's property tax is the 12th highest in the U.S., while the state sales and income taxes are below the national average.

He called the property tax "regressive" because it amounts to a "stiff sales tax on consumer housing." That is "devastating for the low-income bracket," as well as a burden to farmers.

'Need Is Apparent'

Citing a U.S. Supreme Court decision, Warner said the "need is apparent for reform in tax systems which for too long have relied on the property tax" to fund education.

Warner said the property tax is "not responsive to inflation" in supporting education. Equalizing tax support will "guarantee a level of funding from the state rather than the present uncertainty" under the 1967 law.

LB772, he said, will provide a "minimum level of financial support" to every district with uniform property, sales and income taxes. "School districts can provide above the minimum level of support" if voters approve increased taxation, allowing continued local control, he said.

LB772 will also provide uniform spending per pupil throughout Nebraska, Warner said, adding "Equality of education opportunity should remain our goal."

NOTICE is hereby given pursuant to Rule 17 of the Nebraska Air Pollution Control Rules and Regulations, Rule 10 of the Rules of Practice and Procedure and Section 81-1513, R.S. 1961, as amended, of a hearing concerning whether an extension of time for filing a petition for review of a variance from air pollution control regulations should be granted to United Mineral Co. of Weeping Water, Nebraska. The company has asked that it be given until April 15, 1975 to install air pollution equipment at its Weeping Water, Nebraska quarry and attain final compliance with the regulations.

The hearing will be held at 10:00 a.m. on November 15, 1974 in the High School Auditorium, Weeping Water, Nebraska. Comments of those in favor of granting the extension of time will be heard first, followed by those opposed. Those wishing to be heard in support of the extension of time should file a written request to the Department of Environmental Control at the address shown below. Copies of the variance request are available at the Lincoln office of the Department at 1424 P Street, Lincoln, and from Ruth Norris, City Clerk, Weeping Water.

NOTICE FOR OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC HEARING

Pursuant to Federal laws and regulations, the Lincoln Airport Authority, Sponsor for the Lincoln Municipal Airport, affords the opportunity for a public hearing to be held by interested persons or agencies.

The proposed airport development, Project Number 830-0050-06, is briefly described as construction of a heavy duty runway, taxiway, and apron; the construction of an extension on the north end of runway 17L/35R and a parallel taxiway; connecting taxiways and aprons; an access road and a vehicle parking lot; the installation of a Visual Approach Slope Indicator (VASI); and the installation of a color light taxiway, runway and taxiway lighting and fencing.

The Sponsor hereby advises all persons that a statement concerning the merits of the proposed project, "Sponsor's Environmental Impact Assessment Report" is presently available for review by the entire public and may be seen at the office of the Lincoln Airport Authority in the General Aviation Building at the Lincoln Municipal Airport from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on all days except Saturday, Sunday and Holidays or at the Benefield Library, 14th and N Streets during normal library hours.

This Environmental Impact Assessment Report is to provide all persons an opportunity to become better acquainted with the airport's proposal and any possible concerns to them, and will also afford them an opportunity to express their views on the proposed development.

The Sponsor hereby extends an opportunity for the public to request a hearing for the express purpose of considering the economic, social and environmental effects of the proposed project. Should a public hearing be desired, please make a written request including reasons for the hearing to:

Roland A. Harr
Executive Director
Lincoln Airport Authority
P.O. Box 80407
Lincoln, Nebraska 68501
on or before November 18, 1974.

In the event a request for a hearing is received on or before the specified date, an announcement of a public hearing will be published in this same newspaper, together with a date, time and place that a hearing will be held. All information pertaining to the hearing will also be announced at that time.

Dated this 15th day of October, 1974.

Female Jaycees May Be Allowed

Women may soon join the ranks of the formerly all-male Lincoln Jaycees — as associate members that is.

The local Jaycees will vote on the constitutional change which will allow "persons" to become associate members during a general membership meeting Nov. 6.

Associate members can participate in all organizational activities except voting and holding office, according to Gary McLaughlin, Lincoln Jaycee president.

"I support, and many of us support the movement to allow women into full membership," said McLaughlin. However Jaycee chapters which have accepted women as regular voting members have had their charters revoked by the U.S. Jaycees.

The associate membership is the half-way step, according to McLaughlin, who foresees the U.S. Jaycees opening their membership to both sexes in the next "one and a half to two years."

Elk Hills Called Second Largest U.S. Oil Field

Los Angeles (AP) — The Elk Hills oil field in the San Joaquin Valley is now considered the second largest oil field in the nation behind the fields on the North Slope of Alaska, according to estimates.

It had been ranked fourth, behind the fields of East Texas and in Wilmington, Calif.

Navy Capt. George G. Dowd, officer in charge of the field said Elk Hills has 1.3 billion barrels of proven reserves and 3.7 billion barrels of estimated reserves.

The Navy controls 80% of the reserves, which are held for emergency Navy use. Standard Oil controls the other 20%.

The Navy has blocked efforts to transfer the oil to civilian uses.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
